JACOB FROM JAMES FROM

Declare Before the World they are Innocent.

"MY WIFE IS DYING"

Says From to a Republican Reporter to Whom he Made a Complete Statement in his Cell at the Jail

FIRST STORY FROM THE PRISONERS

Slowly and securely the web was wound and at last two persons accused of the murder of Josiah Dale have been landed at Fort Kline on the hill. Quietly the detective work has been going on for months and many people were under the impression that the case had been dropped, when Friday morning an arrest was made and caused as much disturbance as though a dynamite bomb had been exploded. Millard was the man who can be given all the credit for the arrest of these parties.

Mr. Millard is chief of the Standard Detective Bureau of Philadelphia and soon after the murder was committed he was sent for by the County Commissioners and put to work on the case.

On Thursday he made his last trip to Centre Hall, and finished his work this morning when he caused the arrest of Jacob From and his son James of Centre Hall borough.

Mr. A. L. Millard first went to the From home and asked if Jim was there, Mr. From who was doing the family wash told him that the boy was at Meyer's store. Mr. Millard went there and called him out and asked him if he could see his shot gun, at this point Jim flew off the handle and told Millard b——d if he could have, or see the gun, but he cooled down and with Millard went back to the house. Then the old man jumped on the detective and gave him thunder and told him he didn't want to see his G——d face around there again, that he had caused him an awful lot of worry by meddling in his affairs. But Jakie cooled down when Millard asked him and his boy to go along with him to the Squires office and swear that the gun they had was their gun and if they would do that he wouldn't visit their home anymore. Jim, the boy resisted but at last he joined the crowd and went before Squire Mingle where they were both placed under arrest. They were committed under the charge of assaulting and killing Josiah C. Dale on the 12th. of Nov. 1907. They were handcuffed and brought to the County jail by Millard, reaching here at 12:15. The arrest was made at 9 o'clock this morning.

When Millard and his men reached the jail a reporter of this paper was present and watched a thorough examination of the two men's clothing and all they had in their pockets were keys. Jacob From immediateley asked that Squire John Keichline be sent to his cell. After a full description of the men was taken by Deputy Sheriff Reese, Sheriff Kline locked them up, the father in a steel cell at the east end of the jail and the son in another cell at the other end of the prison. When Jacob was once behind the bars he broke down and cried like a child and said "deed Mr. Kline not a word of this is true, I'm perfectly innocent." The boy did'nt have a word to say and seemed scared half to death.

The gun was brought along over and is a 10 gage double barrel shot gun manufactured by the New Ithace Ma'f'g Co. of Ithaca N. Y.

From gives his age as 52 and is a laborer by trade. Mother and father both dead, but his wife is living and is at home ill. The boy is 17 years old. Detective Millard is pleased with his work and feels certain he has the right men.

FIRST STATEMENT.

Saturday morning at 8:30 a representative of this paper had a personal interview with Jacob From and his son James who were arrested on Friday morning accused of murdering Josiah Dale on the Nittany mountains on Nov. 12th, 1906.

Both Mr. From and son spent a restless, sleepless night in prison but ate a hearty breakfast Saturday morning and when the reporter called they seemed a little cheerful although the great strain of accusation seemed to be weighing heavily on them and at times they are in a sad and depressed mood.

Mr. From tells a straight untangled story of his whereabouts at the time of the murder, and his son who is locked 30 feet away from him corroborates his fathers story in every particular.

After a few words of salutation the reporter got down to business and asked Mr. From to tell him all he knew in regards to this crime for which he and his son are accused of committing.

Jacob From is a tender hearted man, (at least from outward appearances) and when we mentioned this subject tears rolled down his cheeks and he cried like a child, saying "If my way to Heaven was as clear as I am of this crime I would go right away." Of course the Good Man will take care of that part of his career.

Mr. From says "Mister as true as there is a God above I am innocent of this crime. On the 12th of November I was working at Mr. Homan's all day husking corn, it was cold and snowy and I got chilled through and my feet was soaking wet as my shoes leaked. I got to my home about five o'clock and started immediately to bring my cow home from the field at the North end of Centre Hall. On my way I picked up a stick as it was dark and a little slippery. I got the cow home and was sitting by the stove warming my feet, I had taken my shoes off. My good wife was preparing supper. My boy Jim reached home about 6 o'clock from where he had been working all day for Mr. Booker at the operator making snitz. We ate our supper and I turned around and sat beside the stove again. I told Jim he had better take the meat book over to Mr. Meyers and see him in regards to the meat he would want. Mr. Meyer's at the time was in conversation with a traveling man and Jim had to wait some time. (Mr. Meyer is now in Florida for his health.) Jim came right back home and about nine o'clock we all went to bed not knowing a murder had been committed. The next morning my son Jim and I had some work to do at the other end of town and on our way out Jim stopped in to see Mr. Meyers and there is where he received the first information that Mr. Dale had been killed. Jim came out and told me and I was terribly shocked, we went on out to our work and when we reached home in the evening, my wife had not heard of it until we told her. I can prove by Prof. Hosterman and Mrs. Bible and others who saw me the night of the murder when I was on my way to get my cow that I did not have a gun with me as some of my neighbors said I had."

Mr. From broke down several times during the telling of his story and would frequently say, "I don't care so much for myself, but just think what an awful scar it will leave on my poor boys character and reputation, the idea of them accusing him of such a crime, and bringing him here to jail, to think he must pass through life with people pointing their fingers at him and saying there goes a fellow who was once accused of a murder. The thought nearly drives me mad and then my wife is dying at home (at this point the poor fellow cried as though his heart would break.) It was only last Thursday the Doctor told me she could not live many days and now this will surely kill her. I have always had trouble, first I got married and then my mother-in-law was with me twelve years and she was sick most of that time, then my mammie was with me for years and she was out of her mind most all of that time and had to have medical attention then my son Jacker died in Pittsburg and now this awful trouble, deed I wish I was dead."

His son Jim tells the same story as his father does in regards to their whereabouts the night of the murder.

SECOND STATEMENT.

On Sunday Jacob From and his son James, gave the Republican reporter two signed and sworn statements as to their whereabouts on the day and night and the day following the murder of Josiah Dale. The statements are nearly the same as appears elsewhere in this paper only these are signed and sworn too. It is the impression of a great many people throughout Bellefonte and Centre Hall that they have not got the right persons who committed this crime. Squire Keichline made an application for a habeas corpus hearing and it will be held on Saturday March 16th. J. Calvin Meyers, Esq., one of the strongest criminal attorneys in the state has been retained by the From's to assist John M. Keichline, Esq., in defending their case. The commonwealth has Ex-Judge John G. Love and ex-district attorney Newton B. Spangler

A motion was made to adjourn and the council of 1906 finished their duties of the past year.

Squire William Musser swore in the following gentlemen as councilmen Harry Keller, Esq. Dominick Judge and Philip Beezer for the term of three years.

The new council was called to order by Clerk William Kelley.

Mr. Wagner moved that Mr. Harry Keller be unanimously elected President of the council. The motion was seconded by Dr. Kirk and was carried by acclamation. Mr. Keller accepted the position and thanked the council sincerely for this great honor they bestowed upon him.

Mr. Derstine moved that Mr. William Kelley be elected clerk of the council by acclamation. The motion was carried.

The council then adjourned until 7:30 Monday evening.

THE EVENING SESSION.

The adjourned session of Council met Monday evening at 7:30 with President Keller in the chair and every member present. The new members were Judge and Beezer. The former occupies the seat vacated by Keichline and the latter takes Seibert's chair.

The bond of Cheney Hicklen as Auditor was offered for approval.

The following applications were made for the different positions at disposal of council.

Street Commissioners—Wm. Dawson, Thos. Shaughnessy and Samuel Showers.

Police—William Beezer and George Jodon.

Boro Solicitor—J. T. Mitchell.

The following committees were appointed by President Keller for the ensuing year.

Finance—Shuey, Kirk, Beezer.

Street—Derstine, Brown, Hamilton,

Fire and Police—Brown, Derstine, Beezer.

Water—Hamilton, Wagner, Judge.

Village Improvement—Wagner, Kirk, Shuey.

Sanitary—Judge, Shuey, Wagner.

Market Beezer, Kirk Shuey.

Water Improvement—Wagner, Derstine, Brown, Hamilton, Judge.

The finance committee recommended the election of J. Thomas Mitchell as Borough Solicitor for the ensuing year. He was elected by acclamation.

On the recommendation of the Water committee Samuel Ryan was re-elected Water Superintendent for the ensuing year at the same terms as heretofore.

H. B. Pontius was appointed Water Assessor for the ensuing year at a salary of $30.00 a year. This was on the recommendation of Water committee.

W. A. Ishler was appointed Water Collector for the ensuing year at the same terms at heretofore.

The street Committee failed to recommend a Street Commissioner and it was left to a vote of council.

The first ballot was as follows:

For Shaughnessy—Derstine, Brown, Hamilton.

For Dawson—Judge.

For Showers—Beezer, Kirk, Shuey, Wagner.

2nd ballot.

For Shaughnessy—Derstine, Judge, Brown, Hamilton, Keller.

For Showers—Beezer, Kirk, Shuey, Wagner.

Shaughnessy receiving a majority of the votes was declared elected Street Commissioner for the ensuing year.

Henry Wetzel was elected boro engineer for the ensuing year.

On the recommendation of the Fire and Police committee Wm. Beezer and George Jodon were elected Police Officer. This appointment is subject to good service.

Thomas J. Sexton Esq., on behalf of the Yeager M'f'g Company asked permission to erect an additional building at the Phoenix Pumping Station. Their business has outgrown the present building. The council granted the permission, provided, the company, makes a satisfactory agreement in writing with Col. Reynolds, a copy of which agreement to be filed with council and also permission to pile lumber on land not occupied by the Borough.

Water Collector Ishler submitted his report for the year, showing he had collected over $5,000.00 and $1100 00 was still to be collected.

Council then adjourned.

Samuel H. Ryan the newly elected Water Superintendent will have served twenty-eight years in this capacity on the first of next October. Mr. Ryan has made a faithful official and can well feel proud of this record of public service.

As to the organization of council the Republicans have a slight advantage in regard to the best places on the committees. In the matter of spoils its a standoff. The President of the council is a Republican, though the council is Democratic. The Republicans captured Street Commissioner, Water Superintendent, Assessor and Boro Solicitor while the Democrats get the clerk, water collector, Boro Engineer and the police.

Ways of the Flying Fish.

Flying fish swim in shoals varying in number from a dozen to a hundred or more. They often leave the water at once, darting through the air in the same direction for 200 yards or more, and then descend to the water quickly, rising again and then renewing their flight. Sometimes the dolphin may be seen in rapid pursuit, taking great leaps out of the water and gaining upon his prey, which take shorter and shorter flights, vainly trying to escape, until they sink exhausted. Sometimes the larger sea birds catch flying fish in the air. The question whether the flying fish use their fins at all as wings is not fully decided. The power of flight is limited to the time the fins remain moist.

Sister of the Late John Morrison.

Miss Jane Morrison died in Philipsburg Thursday at 12:24 P. M. She was 89 years of age. She was buried from the 1.23 train on Saturday. Interment in the Union cemetery at this place.

JUDGE BEAVER INTERVIEWED.

Our Townsman Makes a Casual Observation.

ON SUPERIOR COURT

And the Bill Now on File in the Legislature—What the Judge had to Say.

ATTENDING COURT AT WILLIAMSPORT

Judge Beaver, former Governor of Pennsylvania, was seen at the Park hotel Tuesday evening by a Gazette and Bulletin representative, to whom he said: "Really, I have not even seen the text of the bill in question and therefore would not be justified in giving my opinion. Our judicial body is not in any way identified with the law making organization of this great commonwealth. We are their creatures and not their makers. So far as I am personally concerned, Williamsport suits me very well. It is near my, (Bellefonte) home and quite easy of access. But this is only a personal convenience and therefore has no bearing either for or against any such a measure as there may be in question.

WHY NOT JUST MEET IN HARRISBURG?

"However, should the legislators of the state at large consider it to the best advantage to effect a readjustment of the places for Superior Court meetings, why not eliminate all places outside of our law making city—Harrisburg—and have Pittsburg, Philadelphia and all other sections of the state compete there for all its business in our judicial department? Of course, the two largest cities of the state would not listen to such a proposition, therefore such a movement would practically be out of the question.

A CASUAL OBSERVATION

"But, remember," Judge Beaver continued, "that this is no more than a casual observation on my part, and has nothing whatever to do with any bill before the legislature concerning the point in question."

CHIEF MILLARD AT CENTRE HALL.

Sentiment is Growing in the Little Town.

Since the arrest of Jacob and James From, Chief Millard has been busy in Centre Hall gathering evidence in regard to the murder of Josiah Dale for which the From's are accused of committing. Mr. Millard says he has sufficient proof to hold the prisoners for trial, and the same will be produced at the hearing on March 16th.

The sentiment in Centre Hall has been divided as to the innocence or guilt of the prisoners in jail, but a telephone message from Centre Hall says that the feeling is in favor af the latter.

If these men are really innocent of this awful cowardly crime for which they are accused of committing must they not feel terrible. And if they are guilty the truth will be known, for murder will creep out no matter how hard they try to hide the crime.

Until Saturday March 16th. no one will positively know. Mr. From and his son seem cheerful and are holding their nerve under the great strain. They feel confident that they will go free into the world again clear of all blame. The commonwealth attorneys are working zealously on the case in order to hold the prisoners.

A Faithful Godly Woman.

We failed to mention the death of Mrs. Nancy Malone who passed to her reward in Heaven on Feb. 15th. When a girl 13 years old Mrs. Malone was converted to God and from that time until her death she was a faithful follower of Him. The day before she passed beyond she celebrated her 92nd birthday. She died at the home of her brother Thomas Wilson along the Milesburg pike. Mrs. Malone was the wife of the late Daniel Malone of Milesburg. She was a member of the Methodist Episcopal church of that town. She left to mourn her death one brother Thomas, who is in his 84nd year and a sister Rebecca who is 82 years old. The Interment was made in the Advent cemetery.

PETER RIDER ACQUITTED.

Jury After Being Out One Hour Returned Verdict of "Not Guilty."

After being out only one hour the jury in the Rider case returned a verdict of "not guilty." That the verdict was a popular one and was expected, goes without saying. Everyone seemed to think it a proper verdict under the circumstances.

When the court called at Saturday morning Judge Orvis proceed at once to charge the jury. He was fair in every particular and laid down the law in a lucid manner.

The jury retired at 9:30 o'clock and at 10:30 returned a verdict of "not guilty." Rider is still indicted for involuntary manslaughter but bail was furnished and he left for his home at Coburn this afternoon. It is safe to say that he will never be tried on the indictment now hanging over him.

Rider and his faithful wife and brothers were much pleased at the result.

A sad circumstances occurred at Coburn Friday night when Peter Rider's brother, Joseph Rider died at his home in that place. He was older than Peter and is probably about 60 years old.

THE TRIAL.

PETER RIDER TO THE BAR.

It was about 3 o'clock when the commonwealth called the case of Peter Rider charged with the murder of 13 year old Clyde Auman of Penn township. District Attorney W. G. Runkle is conducting the prosecution assisted by Gettig, Bower, and Zerby. The interests of the defendent are being well taken care of by N. B. Spangler.

On the start off Mr. Spangler tried to squash the indictment as being defective but the Court overruled him and the case was called. Rider is indicted for murder in the first degree but the District Attorney stated that he would not ask for a verdict higher than 2nd degree. Rider plead "not guilty" and said he wanted to be tried "by God and country." Thirty-five talesman were examined Wednesday afternoon and only six jurors accepted up to time of adjourment.

THURSDAY MORNING.

The trial of Peter Rider for the slaying of little Clyde Wesley Auman was continued Thursday morning and the selection of a jury completed. Peter Rider the defendant was brought in by Sheriff Kline and he looked as if the three months in the county jail had agreed with him. He was very unconcerned and did not seem to realize the position in which he was placed. His wife and his two brothers took seats beside the prisoner.

When court opened it looked as if the trial would be suspended owing to the serious illness of District Attorney W. G. Runkle who is threatened with pneumonia. The attorneys for the Commonwealth claimed they were not able to go on with the case. The Court however concluded to have the trial go on rather than have it postponed and put the county to the expense of another trial. James A. B. Miller was called in to assist the prosecution and the case started with W. D. Zerby as leading counsel.

Just as the last man in the jury panel was called the last of the twelve men was selected. The jury is as follows:

John Lyons	Howard boro
David Reed	Pine Grove Mills
Abednego Williams	Huston twp;
Henry Mark	Gregg twp
Charles Moore	Harris twp
Edward Johnson	Milesburg
Shuman Fletcher	Howard twp
L. W. Wert	Haines twp
George Martz	College twp
Geo. W. Bradford	Potter twp
John B. Fortney	Potter twp
Thomas Kenley	Gregg twp

The jury was sworn and put in charge of tipetaffs Wm. Dawson and W. D. Zerby made the opening address to the jury and called as his first witness Mrs. Joseph Auman. She testified that she was the mother of Clyde Wesley Auman and described the bringing of the body home on the 3rd of October 1907. John Rider a brother of the defendant had taken her up to where the boy was shot under a chestnut tree. He died at 6 o'clock on the evening he was shot. He was 13 years of age. John Rider was the first one to tell her of the shooting, saying he heard the shot fall. The boy was in bed when the Doctor arrived.

Mr. Spangler only asked one question on cross-examination.

S. M. Campbell undertaker at Millheim was the next witness. Testified to being summoned to Joseph Auman's home on the night of Oct. 3, 1906. He found Clyde Auman dead. Prepared body for

Daniel O'Connell Moloney, Ally.

By M. J. PHILLIPS.

Copyright, 1907, by M. M. Cunningham.

Attired for the opera, Morgan Tremaine stepped into the elevator at the twelfth floor of the Alameda, where he had his apartments.

"Good evening, Daniel O'Connell Moloney," he said gravely to the knickerbockered and freckled elevator boy.

Daniel O'Connell grinned cheerfully and whistled through a gap in his front teeth by way of reply. They were sworn friends, the two.

At the tenth floor the car stopped, and the door slid back. Tremaine removed his hat ceremoniously. Mrs. Alderton Ten Eyke, also theaterward bound, large and determined in appearance, marched in. At sight of the young attorney she sniffed, a slight, ladylike, well bred sniff, but nevertheless a sniff. Miss Marjorie Ten Eyke, young and slender, dark eyed and lovable, followed her mother. She did not look at Tremaine, but the faintest hint of added color appeared for a moment in her smooth cheeks. Arthur Benscoter, caressing a fiercely upturned mustache, which emphasized his sparse five feet five, brought up the rear. Sixty-five inches are not impressive, but a hundred thousand dollars for every inch of it is rather a good average, which the militant Mrs. Ten Eyke fully appreciated.

So did Tremaine, with a hungry glance at his lovely former fiancee. When one is a struggling lawyer, just beginning to see light ahead after a two years' battle with callous New York, one gives due consideration to a half dozen millions, especially when the other fellow has them.

"Two months of it," mused Tremaine mournfully, despite his jaunty bearing, when he had reached the street. "Two months without a look or a nod or a smile—because I danced too much with that little Rivers girl! I was a fool to do it and a fool to quarrel over it with Mrs. Ten, on the lookout for Mammon every minute. In her eyes I am a 'briefless barrister,' as the English novels say. And little Benscoter isn't a man; he's just a bank—and a mustache. Marjorie can't like the fellow. Still constant pressure will have its effect sooner or later. If only something would come up to break the ice," and Tremaine got so interested in imagining perilous situations for the fair Marjorie, with himself as the rescuing hero, that he walked three squares beyond his theater.

The next morning he overslept and rushed to the elevator with an important engagement almost due.

"In a hurry, D. O'C. Moloney," he admonished the youth at the controller. "I'm so late now I haven't time to speak your full name."

Daniel O'Connell grinned and imitated a steam calliope by whistling shrilly through the gap in his teeth. With apparent carelessness he consulted the indicator board. There was no one waiting to descend. Stealthily he fumbled with the levers—swish!

The car dropped fifty feet like a dead weight before Tremaine could move a muscle. Gasping for breath, of which the swift descent deprived him, he pictured an awful death when the car should strike the bottom of the shaft. But the mad rush was checked as suddenly as it had begun, and the elevator finished its journey to the ground floor at a pace approved by all sensible and well regulated lifts.

A glimpse of Daniel O'Connell's grinning face in the mirror made all clear.

"You young rascal!" ejaculated the lawyer as he caught his breath. "You did that on purpose!"

"Well," retorted the boy, skipping nimbly out of reach, as he threw the door open, "you said youse was in a hurry!"

Ten minutes later the pedestrians on Sixty-fourth street were much edified to see a good looking young man stop suddenly, slap his thigh resoundingly and laugh aloud. Thereat a fat policeman hastily conned over in a somewhat fat mind the list of those "wanted" at headquarters that day. A newsboy on the wing paused long enough to shout "Bugs!" before he swooped on again, to all of which Tremaine, joyously absorbed in a [illegible] idea, paid not the slightest attention.

His high spirits were mysteriously communicative. That evening Danie O'Connell, in an endeavor to outdo previous calliope performances, almost blew a tooth out. His small chest was puffed like a pouter pigeon as he laid a crisp five dollar note in the lap of his mother.

The wintry afternoon was closing as Miss Ten Eyke, in a house gown which to the masculine eye made her beauty simply bewildering, called the elevator to the fourteenth floor of the Alameda. She had spent the afternoon with a girl friend, and as the car stopped her heart beat a little more rapidly over a certain possibility—that she might encounter Tremaine—for Miss Marjorie was very much in love with the young lawyer, despite their quarrel.

She invariably explained to herself at this annoying quickening of the pulses that it was fear, not hope, which made her feel so. Daniel O'Connell approved of Miss Marjorie. She had nice eyes and a friendly way of looking at "a feller." Sometimes they talked—about elevators and books and a guy not having any chance to go to school and how it was a good thing to study nights.

He was a stanch little partisan, too, and talked of his friends of the other sex, chief of whom was Mr. Tremaine. And, although when the conversation turned on the lawyer it usually became a monologue, Miss Marjorie was a good listener. Her eyes would grow soft, and she would sigh a little. One day when Daniel O'Connell gleefully told of a case which Tremaine had just won she gave him a quarter.

"Down!" said a masculine voice, and Miss Ten Eyke's fear—or hope—was realized. The car stopped at the twelfth floor for Mr. Tremaine. He removed his hat with that air of impersonal courtesy which is so annoying when a person is willing to accept an overture of peace. Of course she had returned his ring and sent back his notes unopened and refused to speak to him, but that was two whole months ago. Why couldn't he have been more persistent? Didn't he know a girl could change her mind? Oh, dear! The tenth floor, and he wasn't going to even look—

Swish! The car seemed to drop from beneath their feet. They were falling! An agonized vision flashed into Marjorie's mind, a vision of herself lying crushed and broken at the bottom of the shaft. With a cry which struck remorse to the hearts of the plotters, she turned to Tremaine, hands outstretched.

"Morgan, dear, save me!" And when Tremaine had gathered her protectingly into his arms Daniel O'Connell neatly caught the cable again.

Mrs. Ten Eyke was spending the evening in Brooklyn, and by the glowing grate Marjorie and Tremaine planned the wedding down to the last bridesmaid.

"I'd like to have Daniel Moloney there, too, dear," said the young man. "He's a—a sort of accomplice of mine—that is," hastily, "a pal. He's going to be my office boy after the 1st of the month."

"Daniel shall be there," replied Marjorie warmly as she nestled more closely to his shoulder. "I just love that boy! You don't know how much he thinks of you, Morgan. I'm so glad he's to be"—she hesitated a little and blushed charmingly over the pronoun—"our office boy. It would hardly seem natural if he wasn't there."

Morgan winked at a particularly knowing coal in the grate. "Darling," he said impressively, "it wouldn't be a wedding without him."

Two and Three Letter Names of God.

There are thirteen known languages and dialects in which the name of the Deity is expressed in two letters—viz:

Hebrew, Al; Simonian, El; Chinese, Fo; Hindoo-Syr, Ie; Babylonian, Il; Sanskrit, Ja; Egyptian, Ju; Tamil, Ko; Yocatanese, Ku; Hindoo, Om; Far East Hebrew, On; Egyptian, Ra; Chaldean, Ur.

The three lettered name is found in twenty-one languages and provincial dialects—viz:

East Indian, Aom; Hindoo, Aum; Chaldean, Bil; Slavonic, Bog (a contraction of "Biall-Bog," meaning white); Roman, Dea; Grecian, Deo; Essequibo, Dia; Hindoo, Div; Chaldean, Enu; English, God; Swedish and Danish, Gud; Persian, Hom; Hindoo, Hua; Phoenician-Babylonian, Iau; Sanskrit, Jah; Phoenician, Jao; Druidish-Irish, Joh; Egyptian, Kue; Irish-Celtic, Omh; Egyptian, Pan, and Latin, Sol.

Taken all together, there are 178 languages and dialects in which as a figure of speech God is expressed in words, but in none of them is the word of overgrown proportions, the longest being "Jaobulion," a word which expressed the Deity idea according to a certain sect of Irish Druids, known as "mistletoe eaters."

Might Have Made a Killing.

A physician took it into his head to go rabbit shooting. About 4 o'clock in the afternoon he returned, tired out and empty handed, telling his wife that he hadn't killed a thing. Thereupon she remarked: "I told you so. If you had stayed at home and attended to your legitimate business you might have been more successful."—Chicago News.

Four Degrees of Bliss to Which the Departed Spirits Pass.

The Hindoos believe in four special abodes of the righteous after death. The first is called Sara-loga, "God's world;" the second, Sameeba, "Near to God;" the third, Sarobam, "God's image," and the fourth, Sayutcheyam, which signifies "to be absorbed in him."

To Sara-loga, the first degree of bliss, go the souls of all of those who have ever made a pilgrimage to a holy place or who have paid for the temple lights for one month. In Sara-loga there is great happiness and no work or sickness. The inmate is allowed to read the five sacred books, drink ambrosia and hear the houris sing.

To Sameeba go the spirits of all Keerikarar, or workers in the Brahman cause; also those who forego the comforts of life, such as sleeping in a recumbent position, eating sufficiently, etc. Their happiness consists chiefly of continually praising God.

To Sarobam, the third heaven, go the souls of such as never spoil God's model by shaving or paring the nails. These are the Brahman Yogis. They wander about the earth, always going from left to right. They eat nothing but nauseous food and live in a constant state of abstraction on divine subjects.

The fourth heaven, Sayutcheyam, is the coming abode of the "nyane," or philosophers. These nyane pay no attention to heat or cold, never bathe and often go for weeks without food. If they are sick, no one knows it but themselves. They are the stoics of the world of today and believe that in Sayutcheyam they will eventually be absorbed in the deity.

TRAINING ANIMALS.

Obeying the Word Regardless of the Tone and Manner.

It is true that animals can be taught to obey a tone alone—that is, a mere sound having no place among the lists of words. So may a human being. Therefore that proves nothing. It is likewise true that you may say a thing in a tone that contradicts the word, and the animal may or may not respond to the tone only, but the same effort will produce the same effect on any sensitive child, woman or man. Again, horses and dogs are the most sensitive of all brutes, the most easily offended, encouraged, discouraged. Therefore, need one be surprised if he finds it takes a long lesson to teach a horse or dog to obey the word regardless of the tone and manner? That either can be so taught, however, thousands of people know from their own experience.

I can say to my little Gipsy, "Come here and let me whip you," in the quietest, softest, most smiling style, and she comes cringing, trembling and ashamed, showing unmistakably that she considers the word "whip" humiliating and hateful, yet hopes I do not intend to inflict any punishment. Then I can frown my worst and shout out as savagely as I please, "No; you're a good dog!" and she frisks about joyfully, although she dislikes harsh tones even in sport.—Forest and Stream.

Cleaning Brass.

Here is the government recipe for cleaning brass. It is used in all the United States arsenals and is said to be the best in the world. This is the recipe: One part of common nitric acid to half a part of sulphuric acid. Keep the mixture in a stone jar, having ready a pailful of fresh water and a boxful of sawdust. Articles to be cleaned must first be dipped in the acid mixture, then into the water and dried with sawdust. This process of cleaning will change the brass immediately to a brilliant color. If the metal is greasy—as candlesticks would be—dip first in a strong solution of potash and soda, in warm weather. This cuts the grease and permits the acid to work. This method of cleaning brass is entirely harmless and is very satisfactory.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Impartial Criticism.

A well known salesman entered a west end conservatory the other afternoon on business. A girl was playing a piano in an adjoining room. Suddenly she began Mendelssohn's "Spring Song," and the teacher conversing with the salesman paused to listen.

"Can't you stop that noise until I explain this to you?" broke in the man of business, who seemed to be a privileged character.

"That girl will be a great musician some day," replied the unruffled teacher. "She is naturally talented. Just listen."

"I don't agree with you," snapped the salesman. "She plays too fast and too loud. Who is she?"

"Your daughter," returned the teacher.—St. Louis Republic.

A Mind Reader.

One night at a court ball in the Tuileries Napoleon III. was so attentive to a beautiful young woman as to excite comment among the other women. At last, in response to a direct tribute to her beauty, she said:

"Ah, but your majesty compliments me too much!"

"How remarkable," he replied with a twinkle in his eye, "that you should say just what every other woman here is thinking!"

Only One Objection.

Some sage said that "life would be tolerable if it were not for its amusements." Many people give most cordial assent to this dictum. No objection can justly be made to it except that it is not true.—London Saturday Review.

INSPECTION OF COMPANY B.

Fully 500 People Attended the Inspection on Wednesday Evening.

THE COMPANY IS FIRM.

Major Samuel W. Jefferies of Pittsburg, Captain James C. Harbeson, 12. U. S. I. Were The Inspecting Officers. Assisted by Col. Taylor and Capt. Hunter.

GARBRICK GETTIG AND TAYLOR COMD'S.

On Wednesday evening the annual inspection of Company B, 5th Regt. N. G. P. was held in the Armory on Spring street. The boys will retain their old position at the head of the regiment and Captain Garbrick will have the honor of wearing the gold badge that Captain Taylor wore for years and years for having the best company in every particular in the Regiment. On Tuesday night the Colonel held an inspection and what the boys were deficient in, he quicken noticed and had the mistakes righted. Taylor may have been a little harsh to the boys when he was in command of the company but it was all for their good and they realized the fact when they saw their standing when a final report was made of all the inspections and our boys headed the State Guards.

And the inspection Wednesday night will not put the boys any lower than where they stand now, if anything they will go up a few notches higher. To a reporter on this paper who had an interview with Major Jefferies at the Brockerhoff House this morning he expressed himself as being well pleased with the work of the company although not for a bottle of beer would he give any figures. Captain James C. Harbeson of the 12th. United States Infantry assisted Jefferies in this work and he also said we had an excellent organization in Bellefonte.

The boys fell into line at 8:30 while the famous Coleville Band was playing "The Star Spangled Banner," and the old hymn that won great victories and encouraged the old boys of 61 seemed to inspire the young fellows last night for every man of them braced up in great style for the ordeal they were to pass through the next two hours. First was the Inspection of the appearance of the men and their clothing. Next was the inspection of arms. In this Major Jefferies and Colonel Taylor looked over the guns of the boys in the rear rank while Captains Harbeson and Hunter took charge of the front. Only one gun was found that was not cleaned as it should have been. Next was the inspection of muster and fifty enlisted men answered "here" to their names, that alone gives the boys a mark of 100. At this period the company was turned over to Orderly Sergeant Poorman who put them through the manual of arms in a quick snappy fashion and not one mistake was noticed to be made. After this the setting up exercise was gone through with and in this the boys were perfect.

Next was the squad drill in charge of Sergeant Taylor and Corporal Derstine. The work was done so well and all questions answered in a correct manner by all the non-coms. that Major Jefferies said it was not necessary to have the after examination of the non-commissioned officers. So as we said before the company need not fear of having to take a back seat and if they don't put some of the higher companies in the Guard on the "blink" we are pretty badly mistaken. We wish to extend our congratulations to Captain Garbrick, Lieutenant's Gettig and Taylor for having so excellent a company.

Another New Industry.

A representative of a large lumber concern was in town Wednesday looking for a location for a retail lumber yard and planing mill and secured options on a couple plots of ground well suited for the purpose. It is the intention to open an office at once and have the lumber shipped in finished until the mill is in working condition.

This plant will no doubt employ from 12 to 25 men which means just so much added to the prosperity of the town. Every little bit helps.

A UNIQUE CRITICISM.

The Shout That Made Remington's Indian Open His Mouth.

Frederic Remington's studio was quiet. A stillness that betokens work pervaded the atmosphere, and the artist, working away at his canvas, "The Spirit of War," silently laid on his colors of the scorching sun, and an Indian chief, raised in his stirrups, shouting to his braves, inspiring them with courage for the fight.

Remington had not heard a knock at the studio door or the entrance of an unannounced guest. Nor did he realize that two sharp eyes were scanning his work with that critical examination characteristic of the man who "knows art."

Suddenly there burst from the visitor such a shout as any Indian chief would have been proud of.

Another and another shout echoed through the studio. Remington, starting back, dropped his brushes and palette and turned in the direction of the thundering voice.

"Ah, bah! My boy, open his mouth. Make him shout. Make him look it. Open his mouth. So—so." And the stranger gave vent to two more shouts fit for the plains.

It was Gerome, and this was his method of expression in this special case. Remington, in accordance with his advice, "opened his mouth," and as a result, instead of the slightly parted lips, there is a face so full of enthusiasm, so expressive of a great heartfelt throb giving vent to a cheer, that when one sees the picture he is prompted to the action of Gerome, who made probably the most unique criticism ever given on one of Remington's best pictures.—Scrap Book.

And he bowed again and was silent.—Puck.

Academy Wins a Great Victory.

The strong Tyrone "C. C. C." basket ball team flushed with their signal victory over Altoona by the score of 39-1 came to Bellefonte Friday evening and tost to the Academy team by the score of 19-24.

It was probable the most interesting and exciting game of the season and every player on the Academy team deserve the congratulations of all interested for the excellent playing they did. The boys on the hill have been steadily improving in their work and will undoubtedly give a good account of themselves in the approaching series to be played between the Y. M. C. A. team and themselves.

THE UNEXPLORED.

Many Regions of the Earth Still Remain a Mystery.

Many years will elapse before any other continent is as well mapped as Europe, and perhaps the era of perfected mapping all over the world may never come, because surveys are very expensive and the five other continents have far greater expanses than Europe of comparatively worthless lands that do not call for the most detailed and refined cartography. But a large amount of pioneer work still invites the explorer, for many of the unknown areas have much territorial extent.

In the Amazon basin, for example, three of these regions are each much larger than all of our New England states. One unknown area in northwest Alaska is nearly as large as New England, and the Sahara has two areas in black that are each twice as large and another three times as large as New England.

Asia still has several of these vast mysterious spaces, and the solid chunk of the unknown in New Guinea, the largest island in the world excepting Greenland, would swallow up New England and leave a black border all around it.—Cyrus C. Adams in Harper's.

"Leaves."

To him who is penetrated by true principles even the briefest precept is sufficient, and common precept, to remind him that he should be free from grief and fear. For example, says Homer:

Leaves—some the wind scatters on the ground—
So is the race of men.

Leaves also are thy children, and leaves, too, are they who cry out as if they were worthy of credit and bestow their praise or, on the contrary, curse or secretly blame and sneer, and leaves in like manner are those who shall receive and transmit a man's fame to aftertimes, for all such things as these "are produced in the season of spring," as the poet says. Then the wind casts them down. Then the forest produces other leaves in their places. But a brief existence is common to all things, and yet thou avoidest and pursuest all things as if they would be eternal. A little time, and thou shalt close thy eyes, and him who has attended thee to thy grave another soon will lament. —Marcus Aurelius.

Curious Nesting Habits.

Many birds in their nesting habits have accommodated themselves to the advance of civilization. Thus the barn and cliff swallows, which once built under overhanging cliffs and in caves, now place their nests on the rafters and beneath the eaves of our barns. The chimney swift, which originally placed its nest on the inside of hollow trees, now uses our chimneys for that purpose. The purple martin, once nesting exclusively in holes in trees, will now in many sections of the country use nothing but the bird boxes which kind hearted men have erected.

Handicapped.

"Too bad about Keene. There's a fund of good humorous stuff in the antics of the would be society people in his new neighborhood."

"Well, he's just the fellow to take advantage of that for his funny sketches."

"Yes, but his wife is trying to get into society there."—Catholic Standard and Times.

He Couldn't Object.

Clerk—You can't get a room here for that man. He's drunk. Man (supporting a weary friend)—That's all right. What of that? Clerk—This is a temperance hotel. Man—Well, he's too drunk to know the difference.—Army and Navy Life.

Trouble Ahead.

"Is your husband up yet?" asked the early caller of the sour faced woman at the door. "I expect he is," was the reply. "I'd like to see him for a few minutes." "So would I. He hasn't come home yet."—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Nicknames.

"It's funny how a nickname, given to one during one's boyhood, will stick to one throughout a lifetime," said a man recently. "The variety of nicknames is also amusing. If I were asked to explain the conditions, I should say that it was because the 'rest of the kids' didn't like the real names and just substituted others to suit themselves. For instance, a boy comes to school with a lengthy name that a fond mother has given him with no doubt in the world that he will bear it all his life. Usually her fond hopes are shattered and the little 'dear' will come home from school the proud possessor of such a 'hang-on' as Tip, Rip, Bull or Buck. And it sticks too."—Columbus Dispatch.

A Powerful Salve.

A man in Nebraska invented a new powerful double acting salve which shows powers never before exhibited by salves of any kind. The inventor accidentally cut off the tail of a tame wolf, and, immediately applying some of the salve to the stump, a new tail grew out. Then, picking up the old tail, he applied some of the salve to the raw end of that, and a wolf grew out, but he was a wild wolf and had to be shot.—Chicago Tribune.

Retribution.

"Well, Sal, I'm fired."

"Serves you right, you fool! You had no business to go to the office loaded."—Baltimore American.

Criticism often takes from the tree caterpillars and blossoms together.—Richter.

SUSPICIOUS BIRDS.

Easy to Make Sparrows Show Their Fear of a Trap.

One winter day I made an experiment with sparrows to see exactly how far their natural suspicion would hold out against hunger. I had often noticed that if one put a little bit of string, a large button or any strange object among breadcrumbs the sparrows would not touch the bread. They feared a trap. Starlings are less suspicious in this way. If they care about the bread at all, they are more trustful and do not make any fuss about some small foreign object. But I thought hard weather might make all the difference even to sparrows.

So I put a long piece of apple peel among the bread. It looked quite good to eat, but might be taken by a very suspicious bird for something of the nature of string or tape, which sparrows seem to regard with particular distrust. Can they regard it as an emblem of captivity? Directly the bread was thrown on the ground about fifty sparrows perched in a tree above it. They looked at it very glumly, and not one ventured to come down. Generally they would be devouring the bread within a few seconds. For a little over three hours a crowd of sparrows watched the bread with the terrible piece of apple peel lying among it, but it remained untouched. Then one sparrow made up his mind to take the risk. He was soon followed by all the others. In twenty minutes the bread was gone. But they had wasted over three hours.—St. James' Gazette.

DOWN IN THE FIRE ROOM.

Raking the Ashes From the Furnace of an Ocean Liner.

My "watches," four hours long, began at 8 in the morning and at 4 in the afternoon. The rest of the time was mine excepting when it was my turn to carry water and help clean up the mess room.

The first descent into the fire room of an ocean liner is unforgettable. Going down that series of ladders into the bowels of the old Elbe, the heat seemed to jump 10 degrees a ladder. At last the final ladder was reached, and we were at the bottom—the bottom of everything was the thought in more minds than one that afternoon. The head fireman of our watch immediately called my attention to a poker, easily an inch and a half thick and twenty to thirty feet long. "Yours!" he screamed. "Yours!" And he threw open one of the ash doors of a furnace, pantomiming what I was to do with the poker. I dived for it madly, just barely raised it from the floor and got it started into the ashes and then dropped none too neatly on top of it. "Hurry up, you sow-pig!" the fireman yelled, and I struggled again with the terrible poker, finally managing to rake out the ashes.—Josiah Flynt in Success Magazine.

Luck and Reputations.

"Nobody gifted with a sense of humor can fail to be diverted by the Puck-like manner in which luck makes and unmakes reputations for business ability," says Will Payne in Everybody's. "Years ago a gentleman named Jennings was an extensive owner of downtown real estate in Chicago. He was the first, I believe, to develop on a large scale the modern system of the ninety-nine year lease, whereby the owner insures to himself and his heirs for a century an absolutely fixed rental, free and clear of all charges. After Mr. Jennings had leased a lot of his lands for ninety-nine years a depression came on. Other people's incomes were curtailed, but his was stable. 'What foresight!' said the town. 'What sagacity!' 'What superb business judgment!' Mr. Jennings' views on the business situation and outlook were eagerly sought. The depression passed. Realty prices advanced immensely. The Jennings lots could have been leased at twice the rental named in the old indenture. The town shook its head sympathetically over poor Mr. Jennings' deplorable shortsightedness."

Woes of a Drummer.

"I'm just a little discouraged with my work," said the tall New York boy who has started out on the road. "I was making my second trip west when I met an old drummer who had been on the road for more than thirty years. He sat with grip between his knees and talked to me.

"'Chuck it, my boy,' he said. 'If there is anything else in the world you can do, do it. Look at my gray hairs. I don't know what it is to have a home. For thirty years I have seen my wife about once in five weeks. I know that I've a wife and children in a flat in New York, but that's all I do know about them. The children have grown up and married, but I have not had time to attend their weddings. My wife has grown gray, too, but she has had the best of it. She has had a home and the children. If there is anything else in the world you can do, my boy,' he repeated, 'quit drumming, and do it.'"

The Hiss Polite.

The Japanese prince drew in his breath with a hissing sound as he bent over the young girl's hand.

"Prince," she said, "I have been up against a lot of Japanese, and they all hiss like that when they meet you. What's the reason, anyway?"

"The reason is politeness," the prince answered. "I hiss—like this—I draw in my breath—I keep on drawing it in as long as I remain near you. For if I blow any out some of it might be blown in your fair face. What an offense! Shocking! And so we Japanese always hiss in exchanging greetings. Out of politeness we hold our breath."

NEW YORK BY NIGHT.

The Spectacle of Its Lights From Rivers and Harbor.

By whatever route you reach or leave Manhattan Island in the evening the river lights are beautiful. On the North river the spectacle varies according to the hour and season, for the downtown lights in Manhattan are more numerous when the days are short and the tenants of the great office buildings have to light up to finish their day's work. Across from the lower Jersey ferries late in the afternoon of a winter day glow and sparkle the great company of tall shafts grouped against the sky, each one pierced to the top with regular rows of shining windows. A memorable sight they make, those shafts and huge blocks of gleaming holes, reaching far above their neighbors that come between them and the river. There is much in that spectacle to recompense a tired man for being a commuter, and nowhere else on earth is there the like of it.

And, becides the tall shafts and the intervening lower lights and the glow of the streets that run to the river and border it, there are all the river lights—the ferryboats, with their long rows of bright windows, hurrying on their various courses; the sound steamers going out, other steamers coming in; all manner of lights more sober on all manner of shipping; the street glare and the ferry house and wharf lights ashore, and, higher up, here and there the obtrusive and commercial but none the less radiant advertising signs.

The downtown office building lights go out early, most of them, but up the river some of the tall uptown hotels continue, all the evening and in spite of curtained windows, to be lighthouses.

On the East river, besides the city lights and the river lights, are the high, curving bridges, very striking and beautiful, with their unobstructed outlines marked by the glow of the electric bulbs.

There is poetry in these river lights, bordered and framed by the dark shining water and reflected in it.—E. S. Martin in Harper's.

Falling Into Hole In Air.

One of the strange experiences of a balloonist is that of falling into "a hole in the air," which Mr. Rolker reports as follows: "So you continue sailing, enjoying the present with little thought of the startling surprises that may be before you. Ahead of you, unseen, may be what the balloonist calls a 'hole in the air,' resembling the vortex of a maelstrom, and down this you may literally fall at a rate which is terrifying until by sacrificing two or three bagfuls of sand at once your pilot checks your downward flight. But these 'holes' are scarce, and as a rule the atmosphere is of uniform carrying power."—American Magazine.

When Dogs Were Cooks.

"There was a time," said the antiquarian, "when dogs did our roasting for us—at least they kept the meat turning so it would not burn. 'Spit dogs' they were called, and we call their descendants 'spitz' to this day. Spit dogs were trained to turn the spits on which roasted chickens, beef, ducks and turkeys. The little fellows did their work well. They were never known to let a fowl burn or to snatch a mouthful or two from it. As late as 1816 spit dogs were employed in the old Philadelphia inns on Second and Third streets."

The Servant Question.

The proud millionaire entered his garage haughtily. "Francois," he said, "you took out the new sixty horsepower again last night without permission. I'm afraid I'll have to get another chauffeur."

"I wish you would, sir," Francois answered. "With those four big cars there's quite enough work for two of us."—New York Press.

Historic New York.

New York city has more points of historical interest than any other city on the continent, there being scores of them, extending from Fort Amsterdam, where the new custom house stands, at the Battery, on the south, to Fort George, Fort Washington and the Van Cortlandt manor house on the north.

What Rules the World.

Many years ago John Brougham, Lester Wallack, Artemus Ward and others used to meet after the play at Windhurst's, in Park row, in New York. One night the question, "What rules the world?" arose, and various opinions were expressed. William Ross Wallace, who was present, retired before long and some time later called Thomas J. Leigh from the room and handed to him a poem which he had just written. Mr. Leigh read it aloud to the company, and Mr. Brougham made a happy little speech of acknowledgment. The thing was entitled "What Rules the World," and the first stanza ran:

They say that man is mighty,
He governs land and sea,
He wields a mighty scepter
O'er lesser powers that be,
But a mightier power and stronger
Man from his throne has hurled,
And the hand that rocks the cradle
Is the hand that rules the world.

Had to Do It.

Mrs. Turnbull—It's too bad your husband cut off his flowing beard. Mrs. Crimple—Yes, he had to do it. I gave him a diamond scarfpin for a birthday present.

HIDDEN DANGER.

Nature Gives Timely Warnings That No Bellefonte Citizen Can Afford to Ignore.

Danger Signal No. 1 comes from the kidney secretions. They will warn you when the kidneys are sick Well kidneys excrete a clear, amber fluid. Sick kidneys send out a thin, pale and foamy or a thick, red, ill-smelling urine, full of ediment and irregular of passage.

Danger Signal No. 2 comes from the back. Back pains, dull and heavy, or sharp and acute, tell you of sick kidneys and warn you of the coming of dropsy, diabetes and Bright's disease. Doan's Kidney Pills cures sick kidneys and cure them permanently. Here's Bellefonte proof.

Mrs. Nancy Davis, of 246 East Logan Street, says: "I suffered a bad fall some years ago when living n Rochester. I thought at first that I had broken my back. I was unable to get up without assistance and from that time I suffered for years with a weak back and excruciating pains through the loins and through the small of my back. Sometimes I was completely prostrated and helpless. Doctors and medicines failed to help me and the pain continued until I got Doan's Kidney Pills. I took only a few doses before I began to feel better and when I had continued using them for a while I was thoroughly cured. My back regained its strength and the pain left me. I have had no return of the trouble since."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster—Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. sole agents for the United States.

Peter Rider's Case.

burial. Body was stilled dressed when I got there. I removed clothing when I prepared it for burial next morning. Testified to finding marks on abdomen, arms and face. Shot was principally on right arm breast and face. They looked to be shot marks. I extracted the shot from the body. He produced the shot in court which he had taken from the body of Clyde Wesley Auman. They were in a small vial in which he placed them when he took them out. The boy was between 4 and 5 feet high, he could not remember exactly. He did not extract all the shot some were taken from the head and some from the body. There were many perforations.

On cross-examination he said that the shot he extracted were close to the surface. He could not tell how deep the other shot went. Left knee was broken above knee. Buried the boy in Penn township at a place called Paridise church on the following Sunday afternoon.

Examination by the Commonwealth.

A shirt and overalls was then produced and shown the witness. They were covered with blood. He identified them as garments he took off Clyde Wesley Auman, They were all blood stained. The pants and overhauls were pathetic reminders of the sad tragedy that overtook little Clyde Auman, a pair of childs suspenders were attached to the trousers.

At the close of the examination of this witness court adjourned until 2 o'clock.

When court called Thursday afternoon Mrs. Regina Auman was re-called to the stand. She stated that her son would have been 13 years old in December. He was heavy set but not large for his age. The shirt and pants were identified as the ones Clyde wore when killed, and were admitted in evidence.

The boy's father Joe Auman was then called. He corroborated his wife and other witnesses in their testimony. Described shot marks in right side and face. He counted 97 shot marks on the boy's body. Found blood under tree also shot marks and blood on tree. He climbed tree. Not a very large tree Does not have many limbs. Was about 20 inches across stump. The first limb is about 20 feet from the ground. Where the limb connected with the tree where blood was found, tree was about 6 inches thick. From the look of the shot mark on tree and leaves, a direct line from the ground northwest of tree. He climbed tree on the 3rd of October date of the of the killing. Blood marks on tree were fresh, the shot marks were also fresh. Pointed out places I saw shot and blood to W. M. Grove. Boy was buried Sunday, the 7th.

Cross-examination—There had been very little frost up to the 3rd of October. Gave names of people who were present when he examined tree. A straight line from shot marks would have come on road about 5 rods from tree. He could see the road from tree where the shot marks were 61 feet up from the ground. He could see the road for 512 rods northwest of the tree. The tree is on the righ hand side of the road. Road is about 8 feet from tree. Mr. Rider told me himself he stood in the road northwest of the tree. The boy must have been in the very top of the tree. Ground is rocky under tree.

On re-direct examination Mr. Auman stated that a man standing in that position could distinguish a human being in the tree. Rider told me he thought it was a gray squirrel in the tree and fired He talked to Rider before he was arrested and denied he shot the boy, said if he had shot him he would have brought the boy home and told him he did it, and said he believed that Stuart Kerstetter did it. The witness admitted that he also thought at first that Stuart Kerstetter did it.

Dr. G. S. Frank of Millheim, was called next. Testified to having tended Clyde Auman on the afternoon he was shot. This was about 4 o'clock when he was called. Found numerous shot marks, corroborated the undertakers's testimony Found 97 shot marks. 16 inside of face. 45 in right side and 36 in right arm from elbow up. From the looks of shot marks, the party who fired shot must have been close under the tree. The party who fired the shot must have been 15 or 20 feet away. Remained at the house until afer death of the boy which occurred at 6 o'clock on same day. The shock of the fall was the direct cause of death The right from the load fired from the gun caused him to loosen his hold and fall to the ground. Did not think it an easy matter to see boy in top of tree 61½ feet from the ground by a man standing in the road, especially if he had defective eye-sight. (This was a strong point for the defense and was brought out by Spangler on cross-examination.)

Coroner P S. Fisher was called and testified to holding an inquest on body of Clyde Auman. Found gun shot wounds on body. Corroborated Dr. Frank's testimony. He identified shot which he took from the body of Auman. They were No. 6 shot, I think. Probed all shot wounds. Saw tree where boy was shot from, tree was husky at top but not where boy was supposed to be when he was shot.

Cross-examination—Clyde Auman died from a shock produced by a gun shot wound resulting in fall causing concussion of the brain.

Re-direct examination by Mr. Zerby the witness stated that a man standing in the road 15 or 20 feet from base of tree could distinguish a human being in tree where the Auman boy was. He admitted that a man suffering from defective eyesight might not be able to so distinguish a person.

T. B. Motz of Woodward, called. He described location of tree from which boy was shot. tree did not have many limbs, was not thickly covered with leaves. Was when Joe Auman climbed tree to spot where Clyde was shot from. Could see him plainly 25 or 30 feet from tree.

W. M. Grove of Potter Twp. a surveyor was next called. He produced a draft which he made from actual measurements on the ground. His draft was offered in evidence. It was objected to by the defense. Court overruled the objections and admitted the drafts in evidence.

FRIDAY MORNIG.

The trial of Peter Rider continued Friday morning and the first witness called was Henry Snavely. He was a very strong witness for the prosecution swearing positively that standing in the road under the tree where Clyde Auman was killed he could easily distinguish a person from a squirrel in the tree. Had lived in that vicinity fifteen years.

James Auman corroborated the testimony of Henry Snavely in the main particulars. These witnesses were not shaken on cross-examination. The last witness was a cousin of Joseph Auman, father of Clyde Auman. A limb has been cut off tree after the death of the boy. The tree was open not bushy.

S. G. Rote was called and testified to the condition of the tree which Clyde Auman was on when killed. His main testimony corroborated the two previous witnesses.

W. Miles Walker of Bellefonte was next placed on the stand. The gun of Peter Rider and the shot were offered in evidence. Ex-Sheriff Walker testified to a conversation in W. G. Runkle's office in the presence of Mr. Kurtz what he had with Peter Rider. In substance Rider said he was under a cucumber tree twenty or thirty feet from chestnut tree. He heard chestnuts falling and thought it was a squirrel he drew up and fired. Heard boy cry out but did not see him fall. He was frightened and ran to his sister's house.

George A. Miller of Reynolds Avenue Bellefonte, am a sporting goods dealer familiar with arms and amunitions Identified gun of Peter Rider saying he shot it off. A target was offered in evidence which he testified to having fired at with the Rider gun. The target was 40 inches in circumference the centre circle was 30 inches in circumference. Practised with gun Tuesday of this week. There are about 255 shot in such a shell as used by Rider. Smokless powder operates quicker than black powder. It travels faster than black powder. The witness was examined very minutely as to the effect of different kind of powder as to the scattering of shot etc. He offered two targets one 20 yards and one 30 yards. There was 211 shot in the 30 inch circle that I fired at. The target I shot at was about 3 feet from ground. Did not think it would make any appreciable difference as to the scattering of shot if target was 60 feet in the air.

G. K. Spigelmyer of Bellefonte corroborated testimony of Miles Walker as to conversation with Peter Rider.

Dr. P. S. Fisher was recalled and identified pictures of the body of Clyde Auman which he had taken also of the tree on which he was killed

At this point the Commonwealth rested and N. B. Spangler made the opening address for the defense. It was a very strong plea setting forth what they hoped to prove.

Peter Rider the defendant, was the first witness called Live in Penn township, married My wife is setting there. Don't know how old I am. Can't read or write. Lived in Centre county all my life I was helping Bill Vonada thresh on the 3rd of last October. Worked until noon. Took gun along so I could hunt for squirrels on my way home. I left Vonada's about 2 p. m Nobody with me. Went to bridge and got gun. Went over on railroad. Went down to Sober station, followed road east toward Coburn. When he got to tree he stopped and chestnuts fell. I thought squirrel was tree. I walked back from the tree to look up where the chestnuts dropped. Looked over on another tree and thought there was a squirrel there. He shot and and heard a scream like a human being and was frightened. He run in the woods, did not know where he was going. Crossed a mountain to my sisters. I did not know who was shot. I was badly frightened. That evening his brother John told him Clyde Auman was killed. I told the detective I killed the boy. The first one I told it to talked German. Then I told it to another one. Been in jail over two months. Have defective sight. Sight with the right eye. My right eye is defective. Dr. Musser gave me medicine for my eye. Have hunted for a great many years. Never had an accident in the woods before. Was standing in road when I fired. Saw the leaves rustle, and fired. Did not see boy in tree. It was not at tree that chestnuts fell from that I fired.

Cross-examined by Mr. Gettig—Threshed one full day and part of another at Vonada's. My two brothers helped thresh there. Named the different parties at the threshing. Showed shells to John Confer and others. No. 6 shells, a blue shell. I think it was loaded with black powder. Bought shells already loaded. Did not know how many shells he had. He took the gun in his hand and illustrated how he took aim and fired. He knew that he had done something wrong. At this point Rider broke down and cried saying "God knows I did not mean to kill that little boy."

Rider told a very straight story and was not shaken on cross-examination.

The trial of Peter Rider proceeded rapidly Friday afternoon. The defendant furnished his testimony and retired from the stand with his story unshaken. That he was telling the truth was the general impression of those who heard his story of the shooting. The fact that he suffered from defective eyesight for several years past was clearly proven.

Dr. R. G. H. Hayes testified to examing the defendant at the jail and he unhesitatingly declared that Rider's right eye was defective. It was inflamed and there was a film over it. Dr. Hayes is a resident of Bellefonte and an expert on the eyes. Mrs. Regina Rider, wife of the prisoner testified to her husband taking medicine from Dr. Musser of Aaronsburg for his eyes. A bottle of eye wash which her husband used was offered in evidence.

John Rider a brother of defendant testified to bringing the bottle of eye wash to Bellefonte and giving it to N. B. Spangler.

The following witnesses testified that Peter Rider was a good hunter and careful in the woods. S. Wingert, S. R. Rote, Jacob Moyer, Andrew Vonada Austin Meyer, Harry Snyder, Leonard Stone and Daniel Crader. Their evidence was very favorable to Prisoner.

F. P. Musser of the Millheim Journal testified to the good character of Peter Rider. Had known him since childhood. Was a peaceable law abiding citizen.

George Wirt testified to hunting with Rider and found him a safe man although eyesight was affected.

John Mayes—Was at tree where boy was shot. It was the Sunday he was buried. Place where boy had stood was pointed out. Could not see object in tree where boy was said to be.

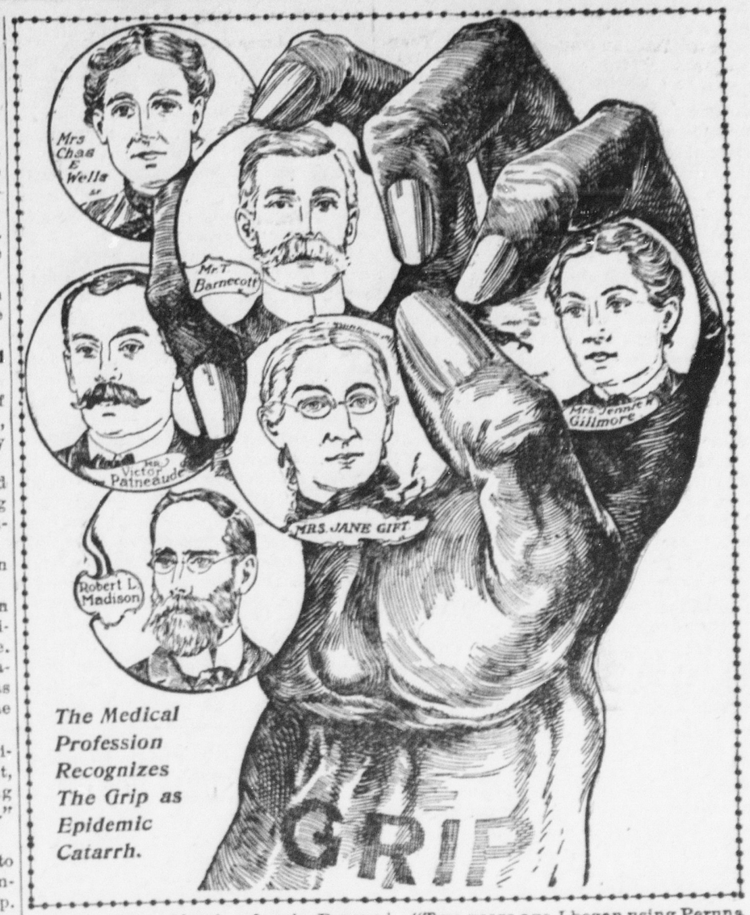
Henry Wetzel and T. B. Motz were the last witnesses called. Wetzel had examined target shown in court and said that this target raised in the air 60 would show ¾ less surface to shoot at than on the ground.

Both sides rested at this point and the court gave the counsel half an hour on a side to argue the case.

N. B. Spangler made a strong and eloquent plea for Peter Rider bringing out all the strong points for the client.

W. D. Zerby made the closing address for the Commonwealth and made a very able and thorough argument for his side of the case.

CAUGHT BY THE GRIP-- RELEASED BY PE-RU-NA.



The Medical Profession Recognizes The Grip as Epidemic Catarrh.

La Grippe Is Epidemic Catarrh.

THE disease now known as 'grip' used to be called 'influenza.'

It very closely resembles a cold, but is more tenacious in its hold upon the system and produces more profound disturbances.

Grip is in reality epidemic catarrh. When it once begins it spreads over the country very rapidly.

People do not catch the grip from each other, but each one catches it from the atmosphere.

"Most Effective Medicine Ever Tried for La Grippe."

Robt. L. Madison, A. M., Principal of Cullowhee High School, Painter, N. C., is chairman of the Jackson County Board of Education.

He is a writer of occasional verse and has contributed to a number of leading papers and magazines,—religious, educational and secular.

In speaking of Peruna, Mr. Madison says:

"I am hardly ever without Peruna in my home. It is the most effective medicine that I have ever tried for la grippe.

"It also cured my wife of nasal catarrh. Her condition at one time was such that she could not at night breathe through her nostrils.

"In consequence, an inflamed condition of the throat was brought about, getting worse and worse and yielding to no remedy until Peruna was tried."

Healthy Mucous Membranes.

Those who are fortunate enough to have perfectly healthy mucous membranes ordinarily do not catch the grip.

The mucous membranes lining the nose, throat and lungs, when in a normal state, are an effectual barrier against the invasion of grip.

But, if there happens to be the slightest catarrhal derangement of the mucous membranes, then the victim becomes an easier prey to the grip.

This in part explains why some people get the grip, while others do not.

The rational thing to do is to keep the system free from catarrh. In attempting to do this most people have found Peruna to be invaluable.

Systemic Catarrh, the Result of La Grippe. Pe-ru-na Receives Credit for Present Good Health.

Mrs. Jennie W. Gilmore, Box 44, White Oak, Ind. Ter., formerly Housekeeper for Indiana Reform School for Boys, writes:

"Six years ago I had la grippe, which was followed by systemic catarrh.

"The only thing I used was Peruna and Manalin, and I have been in better health the last three years than for years before.

"I give Peruna all the credit for my good health."

During an epidemic of grip Peruna should be used. The doses recommended on the bottle are sufficient.

After the grip has once been acquired, Dr. Hartman recommends the use of Peruna in teaspoonful doses every hour during the acute stage, after which the directions on the bottle should be followed.

Experience has shown that the people who use Peruna as a remedy for grip generally recover sooner and are less liable to the distressing and long-continued after-effects of the grip.

When Peruna has not been used during the course of the grip and the patient finds himself suffering from the after-effects of this disease, a course of Peruna should be resorted to.

Suffered Twelve Years From After-Effects of La Grippe.

Mr. Victor Patneaude, 828 Madison St., Topeka, Kan., member of Knights and Ladies of Security, writes:

"Twelve years ago I had a severe attack of la grippe and I never really recovered my health and strength—but grew weaker every year, until I was unable to work.

"Two years ago I began using Peruna and it built up my strength so that in a couple of months I was able to go to work again.

"This winter I had another attack of la grippe, but Peruna soon drove it out of my system. My wife and I consider Peruna a household remedy."

Pneumonia Followed La Grippe.

Mr. T Barnecott, West Aylmer, Ontario, Can., writes:

"Last winter I was ill with pneumonia after having la grippe. I took Peruna for two months, when I became quite well, and I can say that any one can be cured by it in a reasonable time at little expense."

Pe-ru-na—A Tonic After La Grippe.

Mrs. Chas. E. Wells, Sr., Delaware, Ohio, writes: "After a severe attack of la grippe, I took Peruna and found it a very good tonic."

Mrs. Jane Gift, Athens, Ohio, writes: "Six years ago I had la grippe very bad. I read a testimonial of a woman who had been cured of grip by Peruna. My husband bought me a bottle of Peruna. I was soon able to do my work. I continued using it until I was cured."

Open Publicity the Best Guaranty of Merit

When the maker of a medicine, sold through druggists for family use, takes his patients fully into his confidence by frankly and fearlessly publishing broadcast as well as on its bottle wrappers, a full list of all its ingredients in plain English, this action on his part is the best possible evidence that he is not afraid to have the search light of investigation turned full on his formula and that it will bear the most thorough investigation. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for the cure of weaknesses, periodical pains and functional derangements of the organs distinctly feminine, is a medicine put up for sale through druggists for woman's special use' the maker of which takes his patients into his full confidence by open and honest publicity.

A glance at the published ingredients on each bottle wrapper, will show that it is made wholly from native, American medical roots that it contains no poisonous or habit forming drugs, no narcotics and no alcohol—pure, triple-refined glycerine, of proper strength being used instead of the commonly employed alcohol, both for extracting and preserving the active medical properties found in the roots of the American forest plants employed. If interested, send name and address to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo N. Y., for his little book of extracts from the works of emient medical writers and teachers, endorsing the several ingredients and telling just what Dr. Pierce's medicines are made of. It's free for the asking.

SUSPICIOUS BIRDS.

Easy to Make Sparrows Show Their Fear of a Trap.

One winter day I made an experiment with sparrows to see exactly how far their natural suspicion would hold out against hunger. I had often noticed that if one put a little bit of string, a large button or any strange object among breadcrumbs the sparrows would not touch the bread. They feared a trap. Starlings are less suspicious in this way. If they care about the bread at all, they are more trustful and do not make any fuss about some small foreign object. But I thought hard weather might make all the difference even to sparrows.

So I put a long piece of apple peel among the bread. It looked quite good to eat, but might be taken by a very suspicious bird for something of the nature of string or tape, which sparrows seem to regard with particular distrust. Can they regard it as an emblem of captivity? Directly the bread was thrown on the ground about fifty sparrows perched in a tree above it. They looked at it very glumly, and not one ventured to come down. Generally they would be devouring the bread within a few seconds. For a little over three hours a crowd of sparrows watched the bread with the terrible piece of apple peel lying among it, but it remained untouched. Then one sparrow made up his mind to take the risk. He was soon followed by all the others. In twenty minutes the bread was gone. But they had wasted over three hours.—St. James' Gazette.

DOWN IN THE FIRE ROOM.

Raking the Ashes From the Furnace of an Ocean Liner.

My "watches," four hours long, began at 8 in the morning and at 4 in the afternoon. The rest of the time was mine excepting when it was my turn to carry water and help clean up the mess room.

The first descent into the fire room of an ocean liner is unforgettable. Going down that series of ladders into the bowels of the old Elbe, the heat seemed to jump 10 degrees a ladder. At last the final ladder was reached, and we were at the bottom—the bottom of everything was the thought in more minds than one that afternoon. The head fireman of our watch immediately called my attention to a poker, easily an inch and a half thick and twenty to thirty feet long. "Yours!" he screamed. "Yours!" And he threw open one of the ash doors of a furnace, pantomiming what I was to do with the poker. I dived for it madly, just barely raised it from the floor and got it started into the ashes and then dropped none too neatly on top of it. "Hurry up, you sow-pig!" the fireman yelled, and I struggled again with the terrible poker, finally managing to rake out the ashes.—Josiah Flynt in Success Magazine.

Luck and Reputations.

"Nobody gifted with a sense of humor can fail to be diverted by the Puck-like manner in which luck makes and unmakes reputations for business ability," says Will Payne in Everybody's. "Years ago a gentleman named Jennings was an extensive owner of downtown real estate in Chicago. He was the first, I believe, to develop on a large scale the modern system of the ninety-nine year lease, whereby the owner insures to himself and his heirs for a century an absolutely fixed rental, free and clear of all charges. After Mr. Jennings had leased a lot of his lands for ninety-nine years a depression came on. Other people's incomes were curtailed, but his was stable. 'What foresight!' said the town. 'What sagacity!' 'What superb business judgment!' Mr. Jennings' views on the business situation and outlook were eagerly sought. The depression passed. Realty prices advanced immensely. The Jennings lots could have been leased at twice the rental named in the old indenture. The town shook its head sympathetically over poor Mr. Jennings' deplorable shortsightedness."

Woes of a Drummer.

"I'm just a little discouraged with my work," said the tall New York boy who has started out on the road. "I was making my second trip west when I met an old drummer who had been on the road for more than thirty years. He sat with grip between his knees and talked to me.

"'Chuck it, my boy,' he said. 'If there is anything else in the world you can do, do it. Look at my gray hairs. I don't know what it is to have a home. For thirty years I have seen my wife about once in five weeks. I know that I've a wife and children in a flat in New York, but that's all I do know about them. The children have grown up and married, but I have not had time to attend their weddings. My wife has grown gray, too, but she has had the best of it. She has had a home and the children. If there is anything else in the world you can do, my boy,' he repeated, 'quit drumming, and do it.'"

Had to Do It.

Mrs. Turnbull—It's too bad your husband cut off his flowing beard. Mrs. Crimple—Yes, he had to do it. I gave him a diamond scarfpin for a birthday present.

The Wings of Time.

Methuselah was walking in his garden.

"My goodness," he exclaimed suddenly, "there's another flower on that century plant! Why, it seems but yesterday since I plucked a blossom from it."

He walked slowly toward an oak tree 200 years old which he had tenderly raised from an acorn.

"Ah, me," he mused, "how time flies!"—Harper's Weekly.

HINDOO HEAVENS.

Four Degrees of Bliss to Which the Departed Spirits Pass.

The Hindoos believe in four special abodes of the righteous after death. The first is called Sara-loga, "God's world;" the second, Sameeba, "Near to God;" the third, Sarobam, "God's image," and the fourth, Sayutcheyam, which signifies "to be absorbed in him."

To Sara-loga, the first degree of bliss, go the souls of all of those who have ever made a pilgrimage to a holy place or who have paid for the temple lights for one month. In Sara-loga there is great happiness and no work or sickness. The inmate is allowed to read the five sacred books, drink ambrosia and hear the houris sing.

To Sameeba go the spirits of all Keerikarar, or workers in the Brahman cause; also those who forego the comforts of life, such as sleeping in a recumbent position, eating sufficiently, etc. Their happiness consists chiefly of continually praising God.

To Sarobam, the third heaven, go the souls of such as never spoil God's model by shaving or paring the nails. These are the Brahman Yogis. They wander about the earth, always going from left to right. They eat nothing but nauseous food and live in a constant state of abstraction on divine subjects.

The fourth heaven, Sayutcheyam, is the coming abode of the "nyane," or philosophers. These nyane pay no attention to heat or cold, never bathe and often go for weeks without food. If they are sick, no one knows it but themselves. They are the stoics of the world of today and believe that in Sayutcheyam they will eventually be absorbed in the deity.

TRAINING ANIMALS.

Obeying the Word Regardless of the Tone and Manner.

It is true that animals can be taught to obey a tone alone—that is, a mere sound having no place among the lists of words. So may a human being. Therefore that proves nothing. It is likewise true that you may say a thing in a tone that contradicts the word, and the animal may or may not respond to the tone only, but the same effort will produce the same effect on any sensitive child, woman or man. Again, horses and dogs are the most sensitive of all brutes, the most easily offended, encouraged, discouraged. Therefore, need one be surprised if he finds it takes a long lesson to teach a horse or dog to obey the word regardless of the tone and manner? That either can be so taught, however, thousands of people know from their own experience.

I can say to my little Gipsy, "Come here and let me whip you," in the quietest, softest, most smiling style, and she comes cringing, trembling and ashamed, showing unmistakably that she considers the word "whip" humiliating and hateful, yet hopes I do not intend to inflict any punishment. Then I can frown my worst and shout out as savagely as I please, "No; you're a good dog!" and she frisks about joyfully, although she dislikes harsh tones even in sport.—Forest and Stream.

Cleaning Brass.

Here is the government recipe for cleaning brass. It is used in all the United States arsenals and is said to be the best in the world. This is the recipe: One part of common nitric acid to half a part of sulphuric acid. Keep the mixture in a stone jar, having ready a pailful of fresh water and a boxful of sawdust. Articles to be cleaned must first be dipped in the acid mixture, then into the water and dried with sawdust. This process of cleaning will change the brass immediately to a brilliant color. If the metal is greasy—as candlesticks would be—dip first in a strong solution of potash and soda, in warm weather. This cuts the grease and permits the acid to work. This method of cleaning brass is entirely harmless and is very satisfactory.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Bodily Proportions.

In the man of average stature the height of the body is ten times the length of the face, the face from the chin to the hair is as long as the hand, the arm is four times the length of the face, the sole of the foot is one-sixth the length of the body, and six times the thickness of the hand in the thickest part equals the thickness of the body.

Discretion.

"Waiter, how long do you keep your eggs here?"

"Why, until some one eats them, sir, of course."—Annales.

That only is a disgrace to a man which he has deserved to suffer.—Phaedrus.

A Mind Reader.

One night at a court ball in the Tuileries Napoleon III. was so attentive to a beautiful young woman as to excite comment among the other women. At last, in response to a direct tribute to her beauty, she said:

"Ah, but your majesty compliments me too much!"

"How remarkable," he replied with a twinkle in his eye, "that you should say just what every other woman here is thinking!"

For one man who can stand prosperity there are a hundred that will stand adversity.—Carlyle.

SHAVING NAPOLEON.

It Was a Difficult Job For Constant, the Emperor's Barber.

Constant, Napoleon's barber, tells of the many difficulties he experienced in shaving the emperor. Napoleon would take his place in the chair, conversing and gesticulating. Suddenly he would call for a paper or turn rapidly to look behind him.

The utmost caution was necessary on the part of his barber to keep from cutting him, yet in spite of all these restless movements [illegible] Constant was shaving the emperor of he do so.

Sometimes when in the chair he would sit stiff and motionless as a stone, and Constant tells that he could not get him to move his head either way in order to facilitate the operation of shaving.

Napoleon had a singular whim of having only one side of his face lathered and shaved at a time. When he shaved himself, which was seldom, he invariably cut himself badly. This was due to his restless impatience, and, though he was scrupulously neat in his person, he would, after hewing a slice from his cheek, give up the operation in disgust and go about with part of his face unshaved until he had found his faithful barber.

The Two West Points.

The sensations of the new cadet when, after the climb from the boat landing, he finally reaches the plain—those first sensations linger a long while. There are two West Points—the actual West Point and the overarching spiritual one, of which the cadet only becomes conscious about the time he graduates. The determinate West Point that is to be his master for four years and the shaper of his destiny meets him at the top of the slope with ominous silence. He hears no voice, he sees no portentous figure, but there is communicated in some way through some medium the presence of an invisible authority, cold, inexorable and relentless. Time never wears away this first feeling. It comes back to every graduate on returning to West Point, let his years and his honors be what they may. And perhaps it is just as well that it be so; that there is one place left in our country where vanity of asserted ancestry and the too frequent arrogance of speculative and fortuitous commercial leadership find a chill.—General Morris Schaff in Atlantic.

Endurance of Migrating Birds.

The vigor and endurance that birds display upon the wing are astonishing. Nearly all the migratory species of Europe must cross the Mediterranean without resting. The little bluebird pays an annual visit to the Bermudas, 600 miles from the continent, and Wilson estimated its very moderate flight at more than a mile a minute. Remarkable stories are told of the long flights of tame falcons, one going 1,300 miles in a single day. Jawel mentions carrier pigeons that flew from Rouen to Ghent, 150 miles, in an hour and a half, and a certain warbler must wing its way from Egypt to the Baltic, 1,200 miles, in one night.

The Hiss Polite.

The Japanese prince drew in his breath with a hissing sound as he bent over the young girl's hand.

"Prince," she said, "I have been up against a lot of Japanese, and they all hiss like that when they meet you. What's the reason, anyway?"

"The reason is politeness," the prince answered. "I hiss—like this—I draw in my breath—I keep on drawing it in as long as I remain near you. For if I blow any out some of it might be blown in your fair face. What an offense! Shocking! And so we Japanese always hiss in exchanging greetings. Out of politeness we hold our breath."

The Contrast.

A small negro boy was putting his head against the marble steps of the capitol. He would step back a few feet and then run toward the steps, striking them full force with his head.

"What on earth are you doing that for, boy?" asked a senator who came by. "Are you going to fight a goat?"

"Naw, sah, I's doin' it cause it feels so good when I don't."—Rochester Democrat and Chronicle.

The First Bull.

Charon, the boatman of the Styx, was thought by many to be of Irish blood, for invariably as he was casting off from the hither shore he would call out to his cargo of souls:

"Now, then, look alive!"

This was doubtless as near an approach to an Irish bull as the then state of civilization permitted.—Puck.

What Rules the World.

Many years ago John Brougham, Lester Wallack, Artemus Ward and others used to meet after the play at Windhurst's, in Park row, in New York. One night the question, "What rules the world?" arose, and various opinions were expressed. William Ross Wallace, who was present, retired before long and some time later called Thomas J. Leigh from the room and handed to him a poem which he had just written. Mr. Leigh read it aloud to the company, and Mr. Brougham made a happy little speech of acknowledgment. The thing was entitled "What Rules the World," and the first stanza ran:

They say that man is mighty,
He governs land and sea,
He wields a mighty scepter
O'er lesser powers that be,
But a mightier power and stronger
Man from his throne has hurled,
And the hand that rocks the cradle
Is the hand that rules the world.

ROBERT E. LEE.

Some Characteristics of the Great Confederate Leader.

"Unlike many of the leaders in the Confederacy, Robert E. Lee had no pet theory the maintenance of which required him to cast his fortunes with the south," says Mrs. General Pickett in her "Personal Memoirs of Robert E. Lee" in Lippincott's. "A soldier by birth and training, he had belonged to the United States too long entirely to have developed an allegiance to the doctrine of state rights, though long after the war he made the statement that had not that theory been taught at West Point there would have been no secession.

"Though invariably considerate to his subordinates, Lee could be drastic and dictatorial when it became necessary, and if occasion required it he could outrank the president. Jefferson Davis always claimed that he himself was intended for a soldier, not a president, and he was fond of being under fire if he could not get behind the guns. One day he came out on the field during a battle. Lee turned to him and asked:

"'Mr. Prsident, am I in command here?'

"'Certainly,' said Mr. Davis.

"'Then, sir,' Lee replied, 'I forbid you to stand here under the enemy's guns. I order you off the field.'

"The president went.

"One of Lee's strongest characteristics was the grave immobility of his face in times of the greatest stress of feeling. Grant speaks of it in his account of the surrender.

"Meade and Lee were old friends, and immediately after the surrender Meade called on him.

"'Meade,' said Lee, 'the years are telling on you too. Your hair is getting quite gray.'

"'That is not the work of years, General Lee,' Meade replied. 'You are responsible for my gray hairs.'"

GLASS IS PECULIAR.

It Has a Number of Curious and Contradictory Qualities.

Glass is one of the most interesting as well as one of the most peculiar things in the world. It has curious and contradictory qualities, and many astonishing phenomena are connected with it. Brittle and breakable as it is, yet it exceeds almost all other bodies in elasticity.

If two glass balls are made to strike each other at a given force, the recoil, by virtue of their elasticity, will be nearly equal to their original impetus. Connected with its brittleness are some very singular facts.

Take a hollow sphere with a hole and stop the hole with the finger, so as to prevent the external and internal air from communicating, and the sphere will fly to pieces by the mere heat of the hand. Vessels made of glass that have been suddenly cooled possess the curious property of being able to resist hard blows given to them from without, but will be instantly shivered by a small particle of flint dropped into their cavities. This property seems to depend upon the comparative thickness of the bottom; the thicker the bottom is the more certainty of breakage by this experiment. Some of these vessels, it is stated, have resisted the stroke of a mallet given with sufficient force to drive a nail into wood, and heavy bodies, such as musket balls, pieces of iron, bits of wood, jasper, stone, etc., have been cast into them from a height of two or three feet without any effect, yet a fragment of flint not larger than a pea dropped from a height of three inches has made them fly.

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also pamphlet telling all about it, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. Why Do Plants Grow Erect?

Exactly why trees and other plants grow erect has never as yet been definitely determined. Some of the scientists have given it as their opinion that the phenomenon of erect growth was and is in some manner related to the action of light. That this hypothesis is untenable was proved by Dr. Maxwell S. Masters of England, who found that sprouts on green posts thousands of feet underground in the mines always assume the erect attitude.

The Waning Honeymoon.

Proverbs are the literature of reason or the statements of absolute truth without qualification. Like the sacred books of each nation, they are the sanctuary of its intuitions.—Emerson.

RUNNING UPSTAIRS.

It Causes an Excessive and Injurious Strain on the System.

Every one knows that the ascent of a staircase is more fatiguing than ordinary walking. In walking progression is effected by a succession of lifts, inclinations and swings.

In starting the body is lifted, for example, by the levers of the right foot and is inclined forward. The left foot being then raised from the ground, the leg swings forward and is carried by its momentum beyond the right foot.

The levers of the left foot now lift the body again, and the right leg swings forward, and so the body oscillates along on a pair of pendulums. Short pendulums vibrate more quickly than long ones, and therefore short legged people step quicker than long legged people, though with no more sense of exertion.

In going upstairs the mechanism of progression is of course the same, but the lifting action, which is the real force consuming part of the process, is now greatly increased.

Instead of being just sufficient to admit of the free swing of the pendulum foot it must be so great as to project the body up at each step a distance equal to the height of the stair.

Running upstairs is thus an excessive strain upon the constitution, but where does this strain fall? The levers of motion are moved immediately by the muscles, but the muscles cannot act of themselves.

Their contractions and relaxations take place only under stimulus. They are all connected by lines of force, called nerves, with the nervous centers, and these are the sources of muscular stimulation.

Not that the nerve force of the brain is converted into the mechanical movement of progression, but nerve force is constantly drawn upon to maintain the action of the muscles, and this draft is always greatest where there is a sense of exertion.

When bodily vigor is high, the evil result of running upstairs may not be decidedly felt, but where there is debility of any of the processes this strain cannot fail to tell in some form or other with injurious effect.—St. Louis Republic.

SOME NEW YORK FIRSTS.

The first schoolmaster was Adam Roelandson, appointed in 1633.

The first graveyard was laid out in 1633 on the west of what is now Broadway, above Morris street.

The first farm, called "the company's farm," was laid out in 1633. It extended from what is now Hudson to Wall street.

The first clergyman was Dominie Bogardus, for whom a church was built in 1633. This was the first real church building in New York.

The first artist was Dirk Hermans, a Dutch officer, who made a sketch of New Amsterdam in 1635, which was afterward engraved in Holland.

The first mode of public punishment was the whipping post, set up in 1635. Upon this offenders were hoisted by the waist and suspended for such length of time as their offense called for.—New York Herald.

When the World Was a Cube.

There was a time, centuries since, of course, when the learned men of the world really taught that the world was a square, not merely flat, but that it was a cube. The primitive geographers of Egypt, Assyria and China all taught that the world was a "square plane," evidence of which may be found on thousands of ancient monuments in the countries mentioned, as well as in their ancient manuscripts, upon their inscribed tablets of clay and other early literary remains. One of the most curious discoveries ever made in Central America concerning Toltec beliefs, symbols, etc., in that line also had a similar idea concerning the form of what we now speak of as the "globe." A writer on the discoveries made among the monumental ruins of that country says, "They (meaning the Peruvians, Toltecs and Quiches) believe the world to be a cube, suspended from the heavens by cords of gold fastened to each of its corners."

The Aesthete.

Occasionally the Fairlight drawing room supplied a specimen of the aesthete as Du Maurier was then drawing him in Punch. His dress was a complete suit of black velvet and salmon colored stockings. He joined the shooting party, but he generally fell down when the gun went off. That, however, did not prevent his charming the ladies. "You do not look well, Mr. Maudle," said one of these. "Thanks; I am not ill, only tired. The fact is I picked a primrose in the wood yesterday. It seemed sick, and I have been sitting up all night with it."—From M. Escott's "Country Houses."

Birds' Nest Candy.

An American resident of Shanghai sent home recently an advertisement of birds' nest candy printed in English by the manufacturers. The odd screed ran like this: The Candy of the Birds' Nest—Our Candy is prepared of Birds' nest which was famous in all the countries. We made it used with Engines to take the dirty away and then put it into Sugar; there is a great of sweetness, fragrance and whiteness. Every old and young one ought to eat, for it can strong.—Exchange.

Cheers and Coin.

"Your speech elicited great applause," said the friend.

"Yes," answered Senator Sorghum, "it's remarkable to see how easy it is to elicit three cheers from a man who wouldn't give $3 to the campaign fund."—Washington Post.

THE STAGE KISS.

What It Really Means Rather Than What It Seems to Be.

Stage kisses! No one but an actor or an actress can fully appreciate what they mean. The picture as presented to the audience is very pretty, but the vision which looms up before the eyes of the poor player is something like this:

A face covered with a coating of cold cream, which has been powdered over with a thick layer of pearl white or bruhette powder, as the case may be. On the cheeks are daubs of rouge, which at that close range in no possible manner suggest, as they do to the audience, the rosy cheeks of a country lassie. Over the eyes is rubbed a little dark blue powder to make them poetical. The underlids are heavily pencilled, and a mark extends a quarter of an inch from the eye at the end. This makes them larger. Upon each separate lash is a bead of black cosmetic, which has the effect of making them heavy and long. The cherry lips, which to the audience the hero is eager to press to his own, are to his distorted vision at such close range only a gash of carmine painted into a Cupid's bow.

The actress sees before her a picture even less attractive, for ten chances to one the hero, in addition to his grease paint, wears a false mustache and is also "smelly" with tobacco. The glare of the footlights tones down this conglomeration of paint, and at a distance the faces are actually pretty, but upon close inspection they resemble nothing more than a very bad oil painting out of focus.

Taken from this viewpoint, some of the very impassioned kisses featured in plays require no little self sacrifice on the part of the players.—Harriet Quimby in Leslie's Weekly.

A Bit Too Quick.

The Hospitable Jonjons—Yes, we're in the same old place where you dined with us last year. By the bye, old man, I wish you and your wife would come and dine with us again on the—

Her Recommendation.

A girl working as a servant told the housewife, "I'm going away, mom."

Said the woman indignantly: "Suppose some one writes me for a recommendation, what shall I tell them?"

Said the girl: "Tell them, mom, I stood it with you for a week. That recommend is good enough for me."

The Hour and the Man.

Guest (at dinner)—What is the meaning of this? First you bring the fish and then the soup afterward. Waiter (confidentially)—Between ourselves, sir, it was high time for the fish.—Fliegende Blatter.

The Weathering of Coal.

It is probably not generally known that coal exposed to the atmosphere undergoes chemical changes greatly affecting its quality. Moisture is the most powerful agent in producing such change. It is a matter of common knowledge among men engaged in the making of illuminating gas that coal which has been stored for a long time experiences a loss of hydrocarbons, and the effects of the change are shown in a diminution of the volume of the coal and in a loss of illuminating power in the gas produced from it. Such chemical changes occurring in great masses of coal may even produce sufficient accumulation of heat to cause spontaneous combustion.

THE SPHINX.

Nothing by Which We Can Accurately Tell Its Age.

The great sphinx of Gizeh bears no inscription by which we can tell its date. In 1816 Caviglia, who in modern times was the first to clear away the sand, found between its paws a stela of the reign of Thothmes IV., and therefore it was believed that the sphinx was carved by that monarch. But in 1858 the excavations of Mariette uncovered a stela bearing the name of Cheops, on which is a reference to the sphinx. The inscription is evidently of a late period, but is supposed to be an exact copy of an ancient carving, and the translation seemed to place the sphinx earlier than the pyramids and consequently to prove it the most ancient piece of work in the world. Still there remained four lines carved on the base which could not be read, but M. Daressy deciphered them, and it appears that the inscription is in two parts. In the earlier lines there is no mention of the sphinx, but the lines which date from the Persian occupation mention the repair of the sphinx. There is, therefore, nothing by which we can tell the date of the monument, and the only evidence we have is the headdress of the Colossus. Its hood is ornamented behind with three bands, a large one between two smaller bands. Now, this is a fashion which only existed toward the end of the twelfth dynasty in the reigns of Usurtesen III. and Amenemhet III. As this family showed much zeal for the god Harmaklin, whose portrait the sphinx is, it is probable that the monument is the work of Amenemhet III.—London Globe.

THE WALRUS ON LAND.

It Is Just About as Helpless as a Canalboat Would Be.

As might be expected, a walrus is about as helpless on land as a canalboat. It is with no little difficulty and much hitching and floundering that he drags his huge bulk upon a sandy shore even with the boosting he gets from behind by the breakers as they roll in and dash against him. His hind flippers are of little use on land, and on sand or pebbles, where his front flippers do not hold well, the labor of floundering forward is so great that he never stirs beyond the edge of the water and usually lies with his body half awash, with the salt spray dashing over him like torrents of rain. On solid rock or ice he gets along much better, and often a herd will spread several rods back from the water's edge.

The females and younger walruses have far less development of neck to incumber them and therefore enjoy more freedom of motion than the old males, who actually seem a great burden to themselves. These creatures are strictly social in their habits and always go in herds, whether traveling, feeding, fighting or resting ashore. In the days before the slaughter of all living creatures became a ruling passion in the breast of man the Pacific species inhabited the whole of Bering sea and strait in herds which often contained thousands and even tens of thousands of individuals.

Payless Dentistry.

A Baltimore man was one afternoon seated in a dentist's anteroom, waiting his turn, when a young woman, evincing every evidence of utmost agitation at the thought of submitting to an ordeal, entered and took a seat beside him. Very shortly thereafter a series of piercing shrieks came from the operating room, whereupon the timid young woman sprang from her seat in terror and, grasping the arm of the colored attendant, gasped:

"Oh, what is that? Oh, what is that?"

"It ain't nothin', miss," the darky hastened to assure her. "It's only a patient that's bein' treated free of charge."—Harper's Weekly.

A Cooking Episode.

The people who know it all are so tiresome that the verdant simplicity of the novice in everyday affairs is absolutely refreshing. Here is an incident about a young woman who was making her first essay at housekeeping. A friend had sent her by mail a recipe for some new kind of bread giving her directions to take a portion of the dough at a time and make it into the requisite form for baking. This seemed explicit enough, but what was the surprise of the friend to receive a telegram from the young housekeeper to this effect: "What shall I do with the rest of the dough? Please answer."

Polite.

Robecchi asked a friend to dinner and then returned home furious. "What is the matter?" said his wife.

"Do not speak to me! It is a shame! I always thought a politeness produced one in return, so I asked Dobelli to lunch."

"And has he refused?"

"Refused? I should think not. He has accepted."—La Caricaturista.

Fully Explained.

Student—Aren't there somewhere, professor, cacti with hooklike thorns protruding to catch the passerby? Professor—Yes, I believe there are some varieties that are troubled with curvature of their spines.—Chicago News.

Bored to Death.

The Wife—I had a call from Marcelle today. Her Husband—I suppose she bored you to death, as usual, with her stupid talk? Wife—Yes, dear, she talked about you the whole time.—Rire.

THE LEAD PENCIL.

Its Development From the Markers Used by the Ancients.

It is difficult to determine the exact period in which "black lead" was first utilized as an instrument for writing or drawing, as it has been confused with other mineral bodies to which it bears no relation. The ancients used lead, but the metal was formed into flat plates and the edges of these plates used to make the mark. If an ornamental design was desired, the transcriber drew parallel lines and traced therein illuminated designs, usually with a hard point, but also with soft lead. That lead was known to the ancients is also proved by the fact that it is mentioned in the book of Job.

During the year 1615 there was a description of the black lead pencil written by Conrad Gesner. He says that pieces of plumbago were fastened in a wooden handle and a mixture of fossil substance, sometimes covered with wood, was used for writing and drawing. About half a century later a very good account of this mineral was given, and it was then used in Italy for drawing and mixed with clay for manufacturing crucibles.

We are informed in Beckman's "History of Inventions" that the pencils first used in Italy for drawing were composed of a mixture of lead and tin, nothing more than pewter. This pencil was called a stile. Michael Angelo mentions this stile, and, in fact, it seems that such pencils were long used in common over the whole continent of Europe. At this period the name plumbago or graphite was not in use, but instead the name molybdena or molybdoids, which is now applied to an entirely different mineral.

Graphite or black lead is formed in the primary rocks. In the United States it occurs in feldspar and quartz, in Great Britain in greenstone rock and gneiss and in Norway in quartz. The mine at Borrowdale, England, has supplied some of the finest black lead in the world, but the quantity varies owing to the irregularity with which the mineral occurs.

The Jews were for awhile the only manufacturers of pencils. It required great skill to perfect the manufacture, according to the degree of hardness or softness required. Of recent years the manufacture of pencils has increased to such an extent that the price of these articles has decreased proportionately. Graphite and pure clay are combined and used in the manufacture of artificial black lead pencils, and, on the other hand, the greatest perfection is attained in the making of the higher class pencils. Graphite is exposed to heat to acquire firmness and brilliancy of color. Sulphur is also used to secure a more perfect color.—Scientific American.

Real Use of the Bee's Sting.

"The bee's sting is a trowel, not a rapier," said a nature student. "It is an exquisitely delicate little trowel with which the bee finishes off the honey cell, injects a little preservative inside and seals it up. With its trowel-like sting the bee puts the final touches on the dainty and wonderful work. With the sting it pats and shapes the honey cell, as a mason pats and shapes a row of brick. Before sealing up the cell it drops a wee bit of poison into the honey. This is formic acid. Without it honey would spoil. Most of us think the bee's sting, with its poison, is a weapon only. It is a weapon secondarily, but primarily it is a magic trowel, a trowel from whose end, as the honey cells are built up, a wonderful preserving fluid drips.

The Contrast.

A small negro boy was putting his head against the marble steps of the capitol. He would step back a few feet and then run toward the steps, striking them full force with his head.

"What on earth are you doing that for, boy?" asked a senator who came by. "Are you going to fight a goat?"

"Naw, sah, I's doin' it cause it feels so good when I don't."—Rochester Democrat and Chronicle.

The First Bull.

Charon, the boatman of the Styx, was thought by many to be of Irish blood, for invariably as he was casting off from the hither shore he would call out to his cargo of souls:

"Now, then, look alive!"

This was doubtless as near an approach to an Irish bull as the then state of civilization permitted.—Puck.

The Wings of Time.

Methuselah was walking in his garden.

"My goodness," he exclaimed suddenly, "there's another flower on that century plant! Why, it seems but yesterday since I plucked a blossom from it."

He walked slowly toward an oak tree 200 years old which he had tenderly raised from an acorn.

"Ah, me," he mused, "how time flies!"—Harper's Weekly.

Given Up To Die

B. Spiegel, 1204 Virginia St., Evansville, Ind., writes: "For over five years I was troubled with kidney and bladder affections which caused me much pain and worry. I lost flesh and was all run down, and a year ago had a bandon work entirely. I had three of the best physicians who did me no good and I was practically given up to die, Foley's Kidney Cure was recommended and the first bottle gave me great relief, and after taking the second bottle I was entirely cured." why not let it help you? C. M. Parrish.

are caused by Indigestion. If you eat a little too much, or if you are subject to attacks of Indigestion, you have no doubt had shortness of breath, rapid heart beats, heartburn or palpitation of the heart.

Indigestion causes the stomach to expand—swell, and puff up against the heart. This crowds the heart and interferes with its action, and in the course of time the heart becomes diseased.

Nursing Mothers and Over-burdened Women

In all stations of life, whose vigor and vitality may have been undermined and broken-down by overwork, exacting social duties, the too frequent bearing of children, or other causes, will find in the most potent, invigorating, restorative, strength-giver ever devised for their special benefit. Nursing mothers will find it especially valuable in sustaining their strength and promoting an abundant nourishment for the child. Expectant mothers too will find it a priceless boon to prepare the system for baby's coming and to render the ordeal comparatively easy and painless.

It can do no harm in any state, or condition of the female system.

Delicate, nervous, weak women, who suffer from frequent headaches, backache, dragging-down distress low down in the abdomen, or from painful or irregular monthly periods, gnawing or distressed sensation in stomach, dizzy or faint spells, see imaginary specks or spots floating before eyes, have disagreeable, pelvic catarrhal drain, ulceration, prolapsus, anteversion, retroversion, or other displacements of womanly organs from weakness of parts, will, whether they experience many or only a few of the above symptoms, find relief and, generally, a permanent cure, by using faithfully and fairly persistently Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

This world-famed specific for woman's weaknesses and peculiar ailments is a pure glyceric extract of the choicest native, medicinal roots without a drop of alcohol in its make-up. All its ingredients are printed in plain English on its bottle-wrapper and attested under oath. Dr. Pierce thus invites the fullest investigation of his formula knowing that it will be found to contain only the best agents known to the most advanced medical science of all the different schools of practice for the cure of all woman's peculiar weaknesses and ailments.

Dr. Pierce's Lotion Tablets and Antiseptic Suppositories may also be used with great advantage conjointly with the use of the "Favorite Prescription" in all cases of ulceration, and in pelvic catarrh. They cost only 25 cents a box each, at drug stores or, sent by mail, post-paid on receipt of price in stamps by Dr. Pierce whose address is given below.

If you want to know more about the composition and professional endorsement of the "Favorite Prescription," send postal card request to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., for his free booklet treating of same.

You can't afford to accept as a substitute for this remedy of known composition a secret nostrum of unknown composition. Don't do it.

ANOTHER INDUSTRY FOR BELLEFONTE

New Lime Kiln Organization With $100,000 Capital.

On Saturday the fact was made known that a new lime and new stone company was organized in Bellefonte. Although for months past an inkling of a rumor was circulated every now and then that perhaps something of the kind would soon occur. But today it is not only a rumor but the solid truth. We received the information from one of the company stating that a purchase of the Witmer lime stone hills consisting of over 100 acres of the best lime stone in the state was made and that the company would invest one hundred thousand dollars ($100,000) in making it one of the best and up to date operations in the state This peice of land connects with the American Lime and Stone Company's land on what was once known as the Humes farm near Coleville.

They will at once erect 12 modern kilns and a large grinding mill. This operation will give employment to several hundred men which means that from 5 to 10 thousand dollars will be paid monthly in wages and will make business hum in Bellefonte. We extend our heartiest congratulations to these hustling business men and wish them unbounded success in their venture.

The company is composed of the following gentlemen. A. C. Mingle, John I. Olewine, John Walker, Andy McNitt, and Archibald Allison.

Work will begin immedeiately on the new works and in a couple months they will be in full blast.

D. A. R. Historical Contest.

The annual contest for the prizes offered by the D. A. R. for the best essays on historical subjects of the Revolutionary period took place Friday afternoon at the Academy. It was pronounced to be the best contest of its kind ever held at this institution and a large audience enjoyed it thoroughly.

Every single one of the eight contestants did most creditable work but the prizes were awarded to Miss Anne Lyon, of Bellefonte, from the young ladies department and to Mr. George Lutz Hornbrook of Wheeling, W. Va., from the young men's department. Mr. Hornbrook revealed remarkable ability both as a writer and an orator, and was unanimously accorded by every one in the audience, first honors giving the young men. Miss Lyon's essay was most carefully prepared, well written and well read.

The committee of Judges from the D. A. R. consisted of Mrs Elizabeth Callaway, Mrs. Joseph L. Montgomery, and Mrs. John Parker Lyon. Mrs. Callaway in a very happy speech presented the prizes of five dollars each to the winners of the contest and complimented in a worthy manner the other contestants who had done so well.

The readings were interspersed with the singing of the National songs.

The contestants and their subjects were as follows:

Miss Anne Lyon—Lafayette.

Miss May Brown—John Paul Jones.

Miss Ellen Hayes—The Wyoming Massacre.

Miss Emily Bassatt—Colonial Life.

Mr. George L. Hornbrook—Thomas Jefferson.

Mr. Albert Tompkins—The British Colonial policy compared with the American Colonial policy of today.

Mr Townsend Frasier—John Paul Jones.

Mr. Wallace Smith—John Paul Jones.

—California oranges, sweet fruit, fine white malaga grapes, Florida grape fruit, new raisins, apricots and peaches, golden yellow granulated corn meal, elgin creamery butter, finest full cream cheese.

ARTEMUS WARD'S FUN.

How the Humorist Used to Win Laughs In His Lectures.

However much the audience might laugh, even to a tumult of merriment lasting a minute or two or perhaps longer, Artemus Ward stood with the gravest mien and unmoved face. He could not help laughing while writing or planning a good thing, but no necromancer was ever more self poised when he stood before his audience.

The greatest fun of the whole was the manipulation of the panorama itself. Things would go wrong every now and then, and the audience would fairly scream with laughter, supposing it was a mistake, while as a matter of fact Artemus was always at the bottom of it all.

For instance, the prairie fire would go down at the wrong time and then break out again when the scene it was to illustrate had wholly passed, or the sick looking moon would refuse to stay down in the midst, while the lecturer was apparently almost overcome with vexation and despair. Then the wrong music would be played, and the house would break out into roars of laughter, as when he touched upon one really pathetic recital and the piano ground out "Poor Mary Ann."

In the midst of a really instructive talk on the Mormon question or a truly impressive description of the mountain scenery around Salt lake he would stop as if a sudden feeling of distress had come over him which must be explained, and, pointing to an absurd animal in the foreground of a picture, he would tell the audience how he had always tried to keep faith with them, but mistakes must sometimes occur.

"I have always spoken of this animal as a buffalo and have always supposed he was a buffalo, but this morning my artist came to me and said, 'Mr. Ward, I can conceal it from you no longer; that is a horse!'" The effect was simply indescribable.

When quiet came again, he would seemingly become wholly lost to everything around him as he described some absorbing and thrilling incident, turning it into ridicule the next minute by the innocent and apparently merely incidental remark, "I did not see this myself, but I had it from a man just as reliable as I am."—Enoch Knight in Putnam's.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

If you must be frank, be frank with yourself.

Every defeat develops a lot of new excuses.

Most men are optimistic as long as things are coming their way.

A Square Deal

Is assured you when you buy Dr. Pierce's family medicines—for all the ingredients entering into them are printed on the bottle-wrappers and their formulas are attested under oath as being complete and correct. You know just what you are paying for and that the ingredients are gathered from Nature's laboratory, being selected from the most valuable native medicinal roots found growing in our American forests and while potent to cure are perfectly harmless even to the most delicate women and children. Not a drop of alcohol enters into their composition. A much better agent is used both for extracting and preserving the medicinal principles used in them, viz.—pure triple-refined glycerine. This agent possesses intrinsic medicinal properties of its own, being a most valuable antiseptic and antiferment, nutritive and soothing demulcent.

Glycerine plays an important part in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery in the cure of indigestion, dyspepsia and weak stomach, attended by sour risings, heart-burn, foul breath, coated tongue, poor appetite, gnawing feeling in stomach, biliousness and kindred derangements of the stomach, liver and bowels.

Besides curing all the above distressing ailments, the "Golden Medical Discovery" is a specific for all diseases of the mucous membranes, as catarrh, whether of the nasal passages or of the stomach, bowels or pelvic organs. Even in its ulcerative stages it will yield to this sovereign remedy if its use be persevered in. In Chronic Catarrh of the Nasal passages, it is well, while taking the "Golden Medical Discovery" for the necessary constitutional treatment, to cleanse the passages freely two or three times a day with Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. This thorough course of treatment generally cures the worst cases.

In coughs and hoarseness caused by bronchial, throat and lung affections, except consumption in its advanced stages, the "Golden Medical Discovery" is a most efficient remedy, especially in those obstinate, hang-on coughs caused by irritation and congestion of the bronchial mucous membranes. The "Discovery" is not so good for acute coughs arising from sudden colds, nor must it be expected to cure consumption in its advanced stages—no medicine will do that—but for all the obstinate, chronic coughs, which, if neglected, or badly treated, lead up to consumption, it is the best medicine that can be taken.

Pleasing people is like laughing. It has to be done without an effort to be effective.

The most sincere person in the world does not mean it when he says, "I don't care."

Some people get credit for being patient when the fact is they are merely afraid to talk back.

Some people who never recognize a rebuff notice the slightest hint that can be construed as an invitation.

Down at the bottom of their hearts most people believe a little in fortune telling and spiritualism and the mysterious generally.—Atchison Globe.

Mine Preserved Bodies.

A curious story illustrative of the preservative properties of carbonic acid gas, or "choke damp," comes from China. In the province of Nganhwei a party of miners opened an ancient shaft where, according to the official records, a terrible catastrophe had occurred 400 years ago. When the miners entered they came upon the bodies of 170 miners who had perished in the mine, lying where they had been overtaken by the deadly gas four centuries back. The corpses to the eye were as though of yesterday, quite fresh looking and not decayed in any way. The faces were like those of men who had just died. On an attempt being made to move them outside for burial they one and all crumbled away, leaving nothing but a pile of dust and the remnants of the stronger parts of their clothing.

Lalande and Neptune.

The astronomer Lalande narrowly escaped being made famous by a discovery. He accidentally struck Neptune with his glass on May 8, 1785, but supposed it was a star. He put it down in his notebook as a star and recorded its exact situation. Two days later he struck it once more and made a record of it. But when he looked over his notes he found he had it down as being in two different places, and as a star cannot move in forty-eight hours he supposed he had made a mistake in one of his notes. If he had used his mind a little less mechanically, he easily might have been a Columbus.

Postage Stamps.

It is often desired to separate postage stamps that are stuck together without destroying the gum. This can be done by dipping the stamps in water for a few seconds only, shaking off the excess of water and heating with a match as much as possible without burning. The heat expands the water between the stamps and separates them, so that they can be easily pulled apart and are ready for use.

Uncountable.

Tourist (to boy fishing)—How many fish have you caught? Boy—Oh, I couldn't count 'em! Tourist—Why, you haven't caught any, you little vagabond! Boy—That's why I can't count 'em!

A Similarity.

Star Boarder—There's something wrong with the coffee. Boarding Mistress—Yes, it's like you—slow about settling.

The Teeth.

The accumulation of tartar on the teeth makes them unsightly and is often the cause of a bad breath. If the teeth are properly brushed each day tartar will not have the chance to accumulate, but if it has already been allowed to do so it can be removed by a very simple treatment. Moisten the toothbrush in warm water and dip it into magnesia. Rub on the teeth, and after three applications the tartar will have entirely disappeared.

AN INDIAN MYSTERY.

The White Woman Who Fought With the Tonto Apaches.

The following story was told by one of Arizona's early pioneers:

In 1864 Dr. Alsap and Lord Duppa, well known pioneers, were prospecting with a party in the Bradshaw mountains on the Hassayampa creek. One morning the party separated for the purpose of hunting. In going up a canyon, in which they were separated from their companions by high mountains, Duppa's detachment was attacked by a large band of Tonto Apaches. The whites gradually fought their way across the ridge with the hope of rejoining their companions. During the advance Duppa, who was stationed behind a rock, noticed that he was the particular mark of an Indian with a bow. Several arrows had fallen at his feet, and one struck him in the arm. Raising his rifle, he took aim, and just as he was touching the trigger the supposed Indian cried, "Don't shoot!" in good English, but it was too late, and the body fell over with life extinct. Soon after the two parties succeeded in forming a junction, and the Indians retreated, leaving their dead.

Out of curiosity the party returned to the place where Duppa killed the supposed Indian and found that it was a white woman, evidently about thirty years of age and dressed in all the paraphernalia of the Apaches. Investigation was made, but no trace of her former whereabouts could ever be obtained.

THE WOMAN WHO COUGHED.

Catarrh had nearly ruined me. It had eaten away the partition in my nose; produced Asthma, Bronchitis, Rheumatism; ruined my stomach; in fact, gone all through my system. Then Grip finished me. I was a wreck; took cold at nothing; and coughed day and night. The doctors dosed me with opium and quinine. No good. Cough "cures"? Bah! Then Bradham's Balm renovated me. Killed every germ. Took 10 $1.00 bottles. Now I'm like a girl of 18.

Constipation

Baked sweet apples, with some people, bring prompt relief for Constipation. With others, coarse all-wheat bread will have the same effect. Nature undoubtedly has a vegetable remedy to relieve every ailment known to man, if physicians can but find Nature's way to health. And this is strikingly true with regard to Constipation.

The bark of a certain tree in California—Cascara Sagrada—offers a most excellent aid to this end. But, combined with Egyptian Senna, Slippery Elm Bark, Solid Extract of Prunes, etc., this same Cascara bark is given its greatest possible power to correct constipation. A toothsome Candy Tablet, called Lax-ets, is now made at the Dr. Shoop Laboratories, from this ingenuous and most effective prescription. Its effect on Constipation, Biliousness, Sour Stomach, Bad Breath, Sallow Complexion, etc., is indeed prompt and satisfying.

No griping, no unpleasant after effects are experienced, and Lax-ets are put up in beautiful lithographed metal boxes at 5 cents and 25 cents per box.

Court Notes.

On Wednesday afternoon the jury in the case of Ida Keen vs. Alfred Keen returned a verdict in favor of the plaintiff for $105.45.

The report of the Grand Jury was then presented, they having completed their work for the week.

It was as follows.

To the Honorable the Judge of Quarter Sessions of the Peace in and for the County of Centre. Sessions, 1907.

The Grand Inquest of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, inquiring for the County of Centre. in all matters relating to the same, do respectfully report:

That they have acted upon twelve Bills of Indictment of which eleven were found true bill, and one ignored.

We beg leave further to report: that we have visited and inspected the County building and find the Commissioners office should be furnished with a new flat top desk and that new enameled door plates be provided for the various offices in the Court house.

We further report that we found both the jail and Court house in good condition. We also passed upon applications for bridges as follows; one in Harris township at the head of Spring Creek and one in Taylor township near Fowler Station over Vaughlan's Run, both of which were approved.

We respectfully tender our thanks to the Honorable Judge and District Attorney for their courtesy and assistance rendered us during our deliberations.

C. T. GERBERICH, Foreman.

From's Statement

Annie Bible and I had a talk, then came on home, put my horse away and started after my cattle, on my way to the lot before I got to the bars I met John Hosterman and then went on and brought them almost to my house when I met Mr. Samuel Rowe and had a talk with him. also with Mr. Hosterman, then went on with the cattle and stabled them and went to the house. I took off my shoes and bathed my feet, and eat my supper then turned my chair around to the stove. I told James to take the butcher book to Mr. Meyer's and have him select his butcher day and when he started off, I was sitting at the stove and was there when he came back. Mrs. From was with me all the time.

James came home a half an hour before we started to bed, and we were not out of the house until the next morning.

James and I started the next morning to Mr. William Homan to cover a ditch as the weather was to bad to husk corn. When we drove down to Meyer's store I told James to go in and get me a pair of canvass gloves, he did so, and then we went on to Homan's.

As to the killing of Mr. Dale, I don't know a thing about it. This is the God's truth, if I had to die this minute. They would be the last words I would have to say. So I hope that God will see us through,

JACOB FROM

STATEMENT OF JAMES FROM IN THE CENTRE COUNTY JAIL.

On Nov. 12th I was working for Dave Boozer in the operator and at quitting time which was half past 5, I went home washed, eat supper, and changed clothes. Father was sitting by the stove when I got home from work. He said I must take the butcher book along down to Dave Meyers and have him set his butcher day. I went to Meyers and did as father requested me and talked to Albert Meyers and Mrs. W. H. Meyers and returned home at half past eight. Father was still by the stove when I got home. I laid down by the stove and fell asleep, Father then started to bed called me to come to bed so that I could get up early in the morning.

The next day we started to William Homan's to close a water ditch, when in front of Meyers store Father told me to go in and get him a pair of canvass gloves. When in the store I heard Miss Meyers talking about Mr. Dale. The persons present were Dave Boozer, Charley Miner, Albert Meyers, Miss Meyers and Dave Meyers, I said what is that you are talking about and Miss Meyers said Mr. Dale was shot last night. I went out immediately and told father. He was astonished and thought it couldn't be true. We finished our work at Homan's and came home and told mother that evening about the murder and that was the first she heard of it.

A few weeks afterwards a little detective was around, he asked me to go along hunting. I told him I would go with him the next day. I went to the hotel for him and we went up in the mountains. He said he heard that a Mr. Dale had been shot in these mountains and wanted to know whether I knew where he was shot. I showed him according to the reports about where he was shot. He said he was in Philadelphia and a man followed him around in town he got mad and pulled a revolver out of his hip pocket and shot the man down. I said then why in the devil don't they hang you.

JAMES FROM.

HABEAS CORPUS HEARING.

Application Made by John M. Keichline Esq.

On Monday John M. Keichline Esq. attorney for Jacob and James From accused of the Dale murder applied to the court for a habeas corpus hearing. He made a strenous effort to have the time of the hearing set for Tuesday but Ex Judge Love stated to the Court that he had not sufficient time in which to gather together his evidence as Mr. Runkle had been looking after the matter and he is now confined to his hotel with an attack of the grip. After this explanation Judge Orvis set the date for the hearing to be held Saturday March 16th 1907. At which time the commonwealth must produce evidence enough to hold the accused prisoners for trial.

This postponment will greatly depress the prisoners as they fully expected the hearing to be held Tuesday or Wednesday and felt sure they would get home this week.

Baily and Reily Resigned.

He holds a good position at the Iron works in Howard, and understand he is making lots of money. Glad you are meeting with success old man.

Will it be a Success?

A movement is on foot by one of the Clergymen of Bellefonte to organize a young ladies club. The club includes all young ladies working in the homes of Bellefonte, the factories, clerks, stenographers, girls of leisure and others. They will have their rooms recently occupied by the Masonic Lodge in the Reynolds building. Departments will be nicely furnished for reading, writing and games. It is said a dance hall will include the pleasures these ladies will be able to enjoy where they can ask their gentlemen friends to come and "Swing me around again Willie." It is sincerely hoped that the movement will pan out allright. for in Bellefonte we have some girls who are seen constantly on the street from morning until night, and perhaps this institution will be the means of making them better women.

It is the first time anything of the kind has ever been attempted here and it is a question as to whether not it will prove a success. In Bellefonte we have a dozen different classes of girls, and we admit that some are not as good as they should be and are talked about, run down and shunned but these same girls have souls to save as well as the higher class ones. Now when all these women get together in a social way in their club rooms and are on friendly terms, will they still be kind and friendly when they meet on the streets and in public places. If so the club will be a success if not it will be a failure. How pleasant it would have been had the large rooms in the Petriken Hall been thrown open to our girls and there let them meet in a social way, read and write and play their games without the dance. We wish this reverend gentleman success in his work and hope it will be the means of up building the womanhood in Bellefonte.

FRESHIES HAD THEIR BANQUET.

At the Park Hotel Wednesday Night Without Interruption

The "Wearers of the Green," class of 1910, Pennsylvania State College enjoyed themselves to the limit Wednesday evening, when one hundred and fifty-nine of the two hundred and seventy-five members of the class gathered at the Park Hotel, in this city, for the Freshmen banquet.

ON THE QUIET.

This event had been scheduled to come off for some time, but the exact date was kept quiet to keep the Sophomores from getting wise and spoiling the affair. The rules of the college are that 40 per cent of a class must be present at the banquet to win the day. If the toastmaster or two of the speakers of the occasion are captured by some of the higher class fellows, the event is lost. It was to prevent this from taking place that such great care was shown in making the arrangements. The feeling between the Sophs and Freshmen was all the more intensified when the freshies won the picture fight, which will go down in the history of the college as the only instance where the first year class succeeded in making a class picture.

SCOUTS HERE IN ADVANCE.

For some days the Sophomores have been on the watch for signs of the banquet, even having scouts in this city for a week in advance. All the classes in former years have started for their feast from the stone quarry, a couple of miles from the college on the Bellefonte Central railroad. The Sophomores had a strong guard watching this point for days. They were there Tuesday all day, but as night came on they decided the freshies would not attempt to get away that night, so the guard was called in. Just as the weary watchers reached the dormitories, the main body of the freshmen class left the campus and started for the quarry, where two box cars attached to an engine, were awaiting. On the way they captured a poor lone Soph, and carried him with them to Mill Hall, where they took a special train over the Beech Creek for this city, arriving here at 11 o'clock Tuesday evening. They released the captured Soph at Mill Hall.

WEARY WALK AT DEAD OF NIGHT.

Most of them registered at the Park Hotel. All during the night, bodies of freshmen straggled in the hotel having missed the special train and rather than miss the banquet walked fourteen or more miles in the dead of night, over the snowclad hills from Bellefonte to Mill Hall, from which place they took freight trains for this city. Two freshmen were detained by the Sophs and did not arrive at the hotel until nearly 11 o'clock, with the feast half over.—Gazette and Bulletin.
